VOL XVII. NO. 125. TOLEDO, OHIO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1892. LAST EDITION. TWO CENTS.

IN THE BEE TO-DAY

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Toledo, O., Sept. 13, 1892.

The storm has moved south and is now central over Louisville, and is causing heavy rains north of the center and over the lower lakes.

One inch and over of rain has fallen in the past 24 hours at the following stations: Toledo, Detroit, Port Huron, Cincinnati, Memphis and Charleston. West of Lake Michigan rain has occurred at only a few places and in very small quantities.

The temperature has not changed much in the lake region, but in the northwest there has been a decided fall in temperature during the past 24 hours, and frosts are reported from North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Nebraska, while the weather is cloudless throughout this region, caused by an area of high barometer which extends from Kansas northward to Canada.

The indications for Toledo and vicinity are rain, followed by clearing weather to-morrow, and cooler, with brisk to high, northwest winds to-night or to-morrow.

COULD NOT LAND

Cepheus is Anchored off Fire Island

With Her Load of Normania People.

The Dock Guarded by Trusty Men,

Who Will Not Take a Line From the Steamer.

Latest News of the Attempt to Separate the Cabin Passengers From Those in the Steerage—Legal Action Again.

Fire Island, Sept. 13.—Dr. Jenkins arrived here at 4 o'clock this morning by steamer Babylon. After a conference with Dr. Voight he returned to Quarantine. It is expected that a force of police or militia will be here early this morning, probably before noon and that proceedings will be had by which the injunction can be dissolved. From a talk with Dr. Voight it seems that he expects to land the passengers to-day. The early morning hours were uneventful and nothing exciting occurred. The day promises to be one of excitement.

Fire Island, Sept. 13.—The situation remains the same as last night only a little more quiet. The Cepheus remains anchored in the channel. The passengers are feeling very uncomfortable on account of the chilly southeast wind that is blowing. Food is being supplied for the passengers on the Cepheus from the Surf hotel. Men from the main land are still guarding the dock to prevent the landing of passengers. Seventy-five officers are expected from New York this morning and it is understood another attempt will be made to land. The feeling continues very bitter.

New York, Sept. 13.—Commander Jacob W. Miller, of the First Battalian naval reserve, acting under orders from Gov. Flower, late last night issued orders for the battalian to assemble fully equipped for service at Pier 36 North river, at 8:30 this morning. The men were all notified to supply themselves with heavy underwear and two days' rations. Including officers the battalian is over 300 strong and these men armed with cutlasses, revolvers and rifles on board tugs in Great South Bay or patrolling Fire Island beach, could keep off all intruders. They are all well drilled.

Montreal, Sept. 13.—The passengers on board the steamship Labrador, from Liverpool, which arrived last evening, after 24 hours' detention at Grosse Isle, complain that there is absolutely no accommodation at the quarantine station for the steamship passengers who are landed there and say tht had it not been for the efforts of the Labrador's captain they themselves would have been without beds, bedding, cooking utensils or food.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Attorney General Rosendale has telegraphed Gov. Flower and Prof. Collin to the effect that Judge Barnard's injunction against the use of Fire island is not binding. He quoted the case of Whiting in which the supreme court held that the health officer of the port of New York was a state officer and that no injunction can be granted against such use of Fire island by a state officer except by the general term 605 of the code of civil procedure.

New York, September 13.—An order reached the Sixty-ninth regiment commanding officer at 5 o'clock this morning from Adjutant General Porter directing him to hold 250 men of his command in readiness to proceed to Fire Island immediately. By 7 o'clock Col. Cavanaugh, Lieut. Col. Moran, Maj. Guffy and most of the officers of the regiment were assembled in the armory. Shortly after 10 o'clock the battalion left the armory and proceeded to pier 36, North river, foot of Canal street and embarked on a steamer in waiting.

New York, Sept. 13.—Arrived—Chester from Amsterdam; Cufic from Liverpool; Didam from Amsterdam.

Quarantine, Sept. 13.—The North German Lloyd steamer Aller, which arrived in Quarantine Monday morning was released at 10:15 to-day and proceeded to her pier.

Quarantine, Sept. 13.—All was quiet here last night after Dr. Jenkins left. Secretary Seguine was awakened early this morning by the following message:

Babylon, 2 a. m.—Take tug and go to the Stonington and bring bedding, blankets and food to channel off Fire island where the Cepheus is anchored.

(Signed) JENKINS.

Before a start could be made for the lower bay another dispatch came telling him to make no move until further advised by the health officer, who doubtless concluded, in view of the sea running on the shoals of Fire island, that any attempt to get in during the night would be fruitless. I was 8:50 this morning when Dr. Jenkins returned from his night's mission looking worn and haggard, and the reporters were glad to let him go to breakfast undisturbed.

The weather this morning, clear at daylight, now promises the speedy arrival of the expected easterly storm. This adds another element to the perplexing problem and promises to render futile any attempt to take relief to the unfortunates on the Cepheus by the water route. The fleet here this morning has among the liners:

La Champagne, Alaska, Aller, Belgenland and the Didam.

It is hoped to find all well on the first three and to send them up at least by evening. The freighter Amalfi, from Hamburg, will be detained several days for observation as will the Italian plata from Naples with emigrants aboard, one of this morning's new comers.

Dr. Walser, who could not get to lower quarantine yesterday, has gone down this morning and unless the bad weather works a change he expects to return confirming Dr. Byron's 10 o'clock report "all well" of last night.

A transfer steamer has been ordered down to take the passengers off the La Champagne to the city. The steamer will be detained here.

CHOLERA.

The Words of a Man of Experience, and May be Termed Sound Advice.

To the Editor: It has not been true that cholera always first breaks out in dives and ill-conditioned localities, where the people live in filth and dirt, but often the contrary. I have known, personally, of several instances. The second visitation at Cincinnati, in 1833, was especially characterized by its first appearance in best families and best conditioned neighborhoods, and where sanitary precautions were reported to be carefully observed. The bluegrass region of Kentucky was another example. The mortality there—and it was fearful—was chiefly among the well conditioned. This was simultaneous with the great scourge in Cincinnati in 1832.

In Columbus, in 1852, also, the largest number of deaths were among the well-to-do people. Of about 30 deaths in Lancaster, nearly everyone was among the best families.

adopt and inforce, everywhere, the strictest sanitary measures. This course will at least inspire public confidence, besides having a salutary moral influence. And everything combines to show that the scourge can be stayed and turned away by quarantine, strict, stern and absolute—sometimes—not in every instance. There have been instances enough to induce the belief that the essential cause of cholera, whatever it may be, sometimes travels over our heads, and then dips down with most fatal effect where it could have been the least looked for. Even this fact, if it be a fact, does not destroy the germ theory; but it proves to satisfaction there is an unknown and unknowable poison, that, once started, floats in air, and travels with people, and strikes where it listeth, and leaves mortals in the dark—the cause of cholera is not known, nor its cure.

I speak of things as I have known them; beyond that I do not presume to speculate, or to theorize, for the reason that there is nothing definite that can be said. But this I do say to every one—should cholera come, do not take fright and make an apothecary shop of your stomach. Eschew cholera preventative in advance, or in anticipation—have nothing to do with specifics; they will do you no good, but possible harm. Take nothing into your stomach that will in the least disturb the normal functions of digestion and assimilation; then, with a mind at rest, and determined, pursue your accustomed course of life. The time for medicine and the doctor will come when you are sick indeed.

TRADES' CONGRESS.

Report of the Deliberation in Toronto.

Important Matters Discussed and Vigorous Action Taken.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 13.—At the Dominion trade and labor congress yesterday resolutions were adopted in favor of municipalities owning all electric light plants, water works, ferries and street railways, and the federal government owning and controlling all railways, telegraph and telephone lines.

A resolution was also adopted in favor of an eight hour day for women and children employed in workshops and factories.

At last night's session a resolution was adopted unanimously declaring the admission of Chinese a menace and an undeniable danger to the moral and material interests of Canada, and should be totally prohibited, and that as the presence of those now in Canada entails extra and special expense on the whole people of such provinces as they sojourn in in large numbers, a special annual poll tax of $100 should be imposed on each Chinaman after a given date. The Japanese were included in the above, which was carried with much enthusiasm.

Republican Chieftains in Convention Assembled.

Memorial Hall the Scene of the Great Conflict,

Which May or May Not Be a Bloodless One.

Ashley's Friends Claim to be Within Sight of the Plum,

But the Rest of the Congressional Candidates Enter a Vigorous Protest—How the Contest Looks at the Hour of Going to Press.

The congressional fight is on.

The champions—Hamilton and Ashley—stepped into the ring at Memorial hall this morning.

Hamilton was smiling and confident, and Ashley, who is the Sullivan of the fight, insofar as he is the bully and buffer, was somewhat weak in his legs.

Ashle's bottle-holders—Tucker and Southard—were early at the scene and were comparing notes with evident satisfaction.

The bets are 2 to 1 on Ashley, but bets don't always indicate success, as was shown at New Orleans.

The vote in the Lucas county delegation on the election of a member of the congressional committee showed the comparative strength of the contestants.

It was 57 for Ashley and 37 for Hamilton, with five absentees.

This gives a much better showing for Hamilton than was anticipated, as Ashley has claimed 72 votes right along. Four of the five absentees are Hamilton men, so his strength on the first vote will be 41 or 45.

Griffin is playing a quiet game. It is said he has soured on Hamilton and will eventually throw his strength to Ashley.

Ottawa will not affirm or deny that she has a candidate. Jim Luckey says most emphatically that he is not in the race. If Ottawa cannot spring Jim as a dark horse, she will undoubtedly divide her vote between Fulton and Wood.

Wood will stick by Lincoln. That is settled, until Lincoln himself gives the word to break away.

Ashley has the better of it so far, so he might have managed to control the committee on resolutions.

It was into this same hole he slipped Saturday, and Col. Everett, who is strong for Hamilton, is Lucas county's representative in the committee on resolutions. He knows how to pull a wire in an emergency with the best of them.

It was 11:30 when W. H. Tucker, chairman of the congressional committe called the convention to order.

Lucas county was located on the entire side of the hall, Fulton and Ottawa the center, and Wood the extreme right.

Chairman Tucker said the cause of the delay in calling the convention to order was due to the non-arrival of outside delegates. He appealed for harmony and good feeling. There was too much at stake, he said, to allow of any bickerings or quarrelling. It did not make any difference who was nominated so long as he was a good republican. He scored "the cowards" who threatened to bolt certain candidates if nominated. He named for temporary chairman, D. W. H. Howard, of Fulton.

Col. Howard was promptly elected, and on taking the chair, he thanked the convention for the honor paid him. He was not a public speaker, he said, but he was a republican, had always been a republican and hoped to remain one.

S. W. Bolles was elected temporary secreatry.

Col. Everett moved that one member from each county be appointed a committee on credentials.

Jim Luckey moved that similar committees be appointed on resolutions and rules and permanent organization.

W. H. A. Read moved for a recess of 10 minutes in order to give the committees time to repose. This was agreed to, and the committees retired.

The following is the report of the delegations:

Credentials—R. B. Moore, of Wood; Fred Denson, Fulton; Egbert Doville, Lucas; C. C. Starr, Ottawa.

Rules and Order of Business—O. P. Norris, Wood; H. H. Ham, Fulton; Herman Baumbach, Lucas; E. G. Love, Ottawa.

Resolutions—F. M. Young, Wood; J. M. Longneck, Fulton; Clayton Everett, Lucas; C. Sigler, Ottawa.

District Central Committee—J. R. Hankey, Wood; Dr. E. H. Rorick, Fulton; W. H. Tucker, Lucas; H. N. Aldrich, Ottawa.

On motion of ex-Senator Geyser the convention adjourned until 2 o'clock.

Afternoon Session.

It was ten minutes past 2 when Chairman Howard called the convention to order.

The indications point to a dead-lock that may last several days.

The committee on resolutions reported the same old story—Harrison is all right, and so is McKinley and the republican party generally.

The committee on credentials reported no contests.

The committee on rules and permanent organization demanded that the temporary organization be made permament; that the usual rules govern, and that nominating speeches be confined to 10 minutes. Adopted.

Nominations.

When the name of Fulton was called Mr. W. W. Touville named Col. Brigham in a good speech.

R. S. Parker nominated Dr. Lincoln, of Wood.

When Lucas county was reached J. H. Southard mounted the platform and presented the name of J. M. Ashley. Jim gave a corrected biography of the great (?) statesman.

The name of J. Kent Hamilton was presented by Judge J. M. Ritchie.

W. H. A. Read presented the name of C. P. Griffin.

Lucas Camp at It.

Ashley drew first blood. The first thing in order was the election of a chairman. This was to be the first test. Health Officer Fisher was nominated as the Ashley representative and Jacob Romeis for Hamilton. A ballot showed Ashley to have 57 votes as against 41 for Hamilton. Dr. Fisher was therefore made chairman with W. H. A. Read, secretary. Jim Southard questioned the correctness of the vote, and moved that hereafter all names of delegates be called. He claimed that while Lucas county had 99 and there were three absentees, 98 votes had been cast for chairman.

W. H. Read said the motion was an imputation on the honesty of every delegate present and he moved that it be tabled.

Col. Everett tried to throw oil on the troubled water by making an amendment that the roll call be applied only when some delegate questioned the correctness of the ballot. This was agreed to.

Ashley had the better of it in the selection of committees. He got the credentials and rules, and the resolutions was given to Hamilton.

There was no trouble over these selections, but there was a fight made, and a hot one, over Tucker's alleged election as member of the district congressional committee. The roll call was called for and the result showed that Tucker (Ashley) was elected over Read (Hamilton), by a vote of 57 to 37.

During the taking of the vote there came near being a pugilistic encounter between Ralph Holbrook and Herman Baumback.

Holbrook was understood to call Herman a liar.

Herman went for him.

"You —— pup," he shouted, "come down here and I'll knock the stuffing out of you."

There was a rush of friends of both and the would-be combatants were separated.

Wood County Caucuses.

The Wood county delegates caucused in room 119 at the Boody this morning. Judge Nearing was made chairman of the delegation, and G. B. Spencer secretary. A resolution was adopted instructing the chairman to cast the vote of the solid delegaion for Dr. Lincoln, of Wood, until such time as Dr. Lincoln desires or until he no longer has a chance of winning. Wood is solid for its candidate, but it is understood that when the break comes, as it undoubtedly will, the majority, the majority of Wood will go for Hamilton, although Ashley will have a number.

Some of the Ashley men were betting 10 to 5 that their candidate would be nominated. Ross, of Bowling Green, and some other Wood county men took up the bluff and beat them at their own game.

Hustling for Votes.

Last night and until an early hour this morning the saloons on Summit street, the hotel corridors, and even the sidewalks on the principal thoroughfares, could be found crowds and knots of men discussing the political situation.

The leaders of the Ashley-Hamilton factions were on hand buttonholing and cajoling the county delegates as they arrived.

It is claimed by the followers of Slippery Jim that he had succeeded since Saturday in seducing four county delegates from their allegiance to the Hamiltonian cause.

Hamilton and his friends scout this, and say their delegation has increased by two since the county convention. Ashley's attempt to gag the convention, they say, has cooked his goose with the county delegates.

Ashley's emissaries, who returned from the outside counties last night, evidently brought some good news.

Fulton will support Brigham and Wood will stand by Lincoln on the first ballot, and probably for six or seven ballots, but a break will come early, and the Ashley men claim the break will be in the interest of Slippery Jim.

A Wood county delegate was asked last night if money was plentiful just now in Wood. He laughingly replied that if Ashley was nominated every farmer in Wood county would be able to raise the mortgage that encumbers his farm.

It is claimed that Ashley's friends have put about as much money in each of the outside counties as has been dropped in Lucas.

Workers on both sides, after figuring out the probabilities, predict a dead-lock.

Ashley's figures on the first ballot are: Ashley, 82; Hamilton, 70; Lincoln, 43.

Hamilton's friends put up the following probable result: Hamilton, 80; Ashley, 68; Lincoln, 43; Griffin, 4.

"You pays your price and takes your choice."

It was given out this morning that Griffin had decided to throw his four votes to Ashley at the proper time, and that this would be the signal for the break in the outside counties.

It is not at all probable that if such a dicker has been entered into, Mr. Griffin can deliver the goods.

Strength of the Vote.

Friends of Ashley argue that even if Hamilton succeeded in securing Fulton, which he may, as Brigham despises Ashley, he cannot be nominated, as the counties, even allowing his full claim in Lucas, would give him but 82 votes.

The following is the vote:

Lucas	99
Wood	53
Fulton	27
Ottawa	16
Total	195

Necessary to a choice, 98.

It will be seen that Lucas county, if united on a candidate, has the power to nominate, but it is not at all probable that either faction will give way.

Ashley depends on the potency of money to see him through.

Hamilton relies on brains and good generalship.

This is the situation as seen last night. What will to-day bring forth?

Notes.

Boodle v. Brains.

Griffin says he is still in the race.

It is the postoffice against Hamilton.

Mayor Emmick thinks it will be Hamilton, sure.

Col. Waldorf and Jim Ashley seem to be fast friends.

State Auditor Poe is with the Wood county delegation.

Sheriff Stuart says none but democrats will vote for Ashley.

John Stuart is for Hamilton first and last and all the time.

Jim Ashley was up all night, evidently, judging from his looks.

It is not probable that the convention will get through to-day.

Little Ottawa is lying very quiet, but will be heard from later.

Dr. Lincoln has his headquarters in rooms 119 and 120, Boody.

Representative James of Wood is on deck smiling and happy as usual.

The wet weather had the effect of driving the delegates under cover.

Herman Baumbach makes more noise for his size than any man in the hall.

Griffin looks as if he had a big secret under his hat. Wait and see if he has.

It may prove another Sullivan-Corbett surprise with Ashley in the role of Sullivan.

Dr. Rorick, of Fulton, is doing considerable quiet work for his man on the floor.

Col. W. A. Taylor was present to do the convention for the Cincinnati Enquirer.

John Watson: "Saturday's convention was the most disgraceful one I ever attended."

There was a hen on in the Fulton county delegation this morning. It will hatch out later.

J. C. Bollmyer, of the Wauseon Expositor, took in the fun from a democratic standpoint.

Squire is missed in the Fourth ward delegation. John Morganthaler heads the delegation.

Ashley claims two converts in the Seventh. Wonder how much it cost to convert them?

Reno and his cowboy hat has been doing the double-shuffle with Hamilton. It didn't work.

Jim Southard is more careful in his tactics to-day, but it is 10 to 1 that he will be out-generaled.

Bill Geyser, of Swanton, is around large as life, satisfied that Fulton county has been joined to Toledo.

Mr. Tucker has not enhanced his chances for mayor next spring by his achievements in the past week.

Auditor Wilson, of Wood county, is the general in command of the Lincoln forces, and he has many valuable aids.

Kent Hamilton is a good fighter, but his supply of the long green does not measure up with that of his opponent.

Ashley claims to have renewed friendship with Brigham, and the former expects a number of votes from Fulton.

The postoffice people threw off their disguise this morning and were on tap for Ashley. Rike posed as a Hamilton man

Fulton county did not caucus until after reaching the hall. Fulton will stand by Brigham for several votes, anyhow.

Col. Brigham, Capt. Luckey, Dr. Lincoln, Jim Ashley, Kent Hamilton, and Charley Griffin are keeping tab on their followers.

Some of Jim Ashley's opponents are unkind enough to refer to the fact that he was a candidate against Frank Hurd for congress in the democratic convention a few years since, and that he made speeches for Cleveland against Blaine.

MRS. HARRISON'S ILLNESS.

Her Condition Has Become So Grave That the President Has Abandoned His Trip.

Loon Lake House, N. Y., Sept. 13.—An unexpected complication has added itself to Mrs. Harrison's illness and her condition is now so grave that it will prevent the president from being absent from the sick room.

In consequence the trip through northern and central New York which the president had anticipated making has been given up. Chairman Hackett, of the republican state committee, was apprised of the fact by telegram from Loon Lake this morning.

Much solicitude has been expressed at the sudden turn in Mrs. Harrison's condition.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 13.—The Empire announces that Edward Hanlan, the oarsman, will in a few days challenge Jmes Stansbury, of Australia, to row for the championship of the world. Hanlan will name either England or California as the place of the race. The stakes will be $2,500 a side.

HE WAS SHORT.

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 13.—Frederick O. Clarke, bookkeeper for W. H. Post & Co., has disappeared. Before leaving he signed a paper saying he had embezzled at least $15,000. The firm is temporarily embarrassed.

BLACK MEN ENTRAPPED

Natives of the Transvaal in the Hands of a Showman.

Shivering on a Steamer and Not Allowed to Land.

Imported by Cunningham, Who Beguiled Samoans to Leave Their Country.

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—R. A. Cunningham has just imported from the Transvaal a company of negroes whom he wished to exhibit. When the Monowai arrived here from Auckland with the negroes on board they were not allowed to land, on the ostensible ground that they were likely to become public charges. They squatted in a squalid and shivering group on deck. Brought from their tropical home away off in Africa these people found San Francisco's balmy air almost arctic.

Back of it all, however, is a story—a pitiful story at that.

In June, 1889, shortly after that awful hurricane had ended the threatening trouble between the United States and Germany by wrecking the fleets and drowning the sailors, a man named R. A. Cunningham came to Samoa. He wanted to get some of the natives to travel with him for exhibition purposes. The world's attention ha dbeen drawn to Samoa and he thought, rightly, that the world would pay to see some of the people. The storm had devastated the islands, and his offers were alluring. King Mataafa would not, however, allow any of his subjects to accept the showman's proposition. Knowing that he would not be allowed to embark any of the islanders from Apia, Cunningham went to a neighboring island, and from out of a starving village near Pago-Pago he induced 11 to go with him. He caught the Alameda in the open sea, and went away on her with his victims. They almost perished of cold before they reached America. He exhibited them nearly naked throughout America and frosty Europe. Under his care they died one after another, until only five homesick and suffering South Sea islanders were left of the band.

These Cunningham quietly sold to a New York showman. A newspaper discovered the remnant and published the facts. Of course, they were bound by contract, but the simple savages knew no more of the meaning of the mysterious paper than they did of the fourth dimension of space. The government canceled the contract and sent the wretched remnant home. Three of them got back alive to their island.

The black men on the Monowai came from the Transvaal. They worked at a cattle station there, they said, until Cunningham came along. He wanted them to travel and give exhibitions of throwing the boomerang. They signed a contract for three years.

They do not know exactly what was in the contract, but they understood that by touching their fingers to the pen that signed it guaranteed them three years of great prosperity—no work, no trouble, nothing but sunshine, and much to eat and much to wear, and much money to bring back to the cattle station.

So they went—six men and two women with Cunningham to Auckland. There he was to buy them fine clothes, but instead he simply shipped them in the steerage to San Francisco and came along himself. They had no clothes, and on the way up the women cried with cold.

The indignant passengers on the Monowai remonstrated with Cunningham, but he paid little attention. Then the passengers gave the blacks some of their own clothing. When within a day or two of this city Cunningham did produce a box of rags from his chattels, but all they have will not keep the blacks warm. They sit on the deck and shiver, the men stoically, the women miserably.

They have lost all faith in the paper that was to have brought them so much. They do not care for the big, wonderful city to which they have come; they will not go ashore, but sit resolutely on the deck far away from the wharf as they can get. They only want to go home. They talk some English, the men do at least; the women answer no questions, either by voice or gesture. They simply squat on the deck in their rags, a man's coat over each, and shiver when the west wind blows.

They are not handsome people—undersized, intensely black, with great flat noses and thick lips—but there is a suggestion of sinewy strength about their little bodies.

They are angry at Cunningham. In the language of one of them:

"'E ain't been treat us right, no, sah, an' we want to glo back."

Another interrupted with:

"'E don't look out maybe so I fix 'im."

When pressed for a more definite statement he said he would put Cunningham in jail.

"'E ain't can get away from me when I want him; I track him so eesy!"

And the black man cast a confident glance over the side of the ship where Cunningham had vanished.

A petition from the Monowai's passengers is to be presented to the English consul and the federal authorities asking that the hapless blacks be sent back at once.

THE ELECTION IN MAINE

Republicans Secure the Usual Victory,

But it is Done by a Decreased Majority.

Telegrams From All Over the State Showing How the Voting Resulted.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 13.—The following dispatch explains itself:

Augusta, Me., Sept. 13, 1892.

"The Hon. Thomas H. Carter, Chairman National Republican Committee, No. 518 Fifth avenue, New York:

"The total vote will be 12,000 less than in 1888. We elect all four congressmen, carry 14 of the 16 counties, have two-thirds of the members of the legislature, and elect our governor by —,000 majority over the democratic candidate.

"J. H. Manley."

In Adroscoggin County.

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 13.—Returns from all the towns in Androscoggin county, except Green and Leeds, give Cleaves 4,112, and Johnson 3,559. The remaining towns were nearly a tie two years ago. Scattering returns from the several counties of the Second congressional district show the re-election of Dingley (republican), by between 3,000 and 4,000 plurality over Magillicuddy (democrat). Dingley runs ahead of his ticket and Magillicuddy behind.

By the Usual Majority.

Bath, Me., Sept. 13.—The republicans carry Sagadahoc county by the usual good majority, electing the entire ticket by an average plurality of 913.

The Entire Ticket.

Dover, Me., Sept. 13.—The entire republican ticket is elected in Piscataquis county, but by a slightly less majority than four years ago.

York County.

Saco, Me., Sept. 13.—York county returns show a falling off from the figures of two years ago. Nineteen out of the 27 towns in the county give 800 republican majority on the vote for governor. The county will probably give a republican majority of 1,200.

Democrats Carry a District.

Damariscotta, Me., Sept. 13.—Lincoln county gives Cleaves (rep.) for governor about 400 plurality and elects the entire republican county ticket. Four of the five representatives are republicans. The democrats carry the Waldoboro district.

The Vote of Portland.

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—The corrected vote of this city gives Cleaves 3,951; Johnson 3,423; Hussey 114.

Washington County.

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—Washington county went republican by 1,100 majority, the entire republican ticket being elected. Eight of the ten members of the house are republican.

LATE RETURNS.

Great Falling off in Republican Plurality.

Portland, Me., Sept. 13.—One hundred and seventy-seven towns give Cleaves (rep.) 40,443; Johnson (dem.) 33,135; Hussey (pro.) 949; scattering, which includes labor and some of the prohibition votes, 928.

In 1890 the same towns gave Burleigh (rep.) 37,908; Thompson (dem.) 25,639; Clark (pro.) 1,540; scattering, 778. Republican plurality, 7,308, against 12,279 in 1890. If the vote to hear from comes in at the same ratio of gain the total vote will be about: Republican, 68,500; democratic, 58,500, or 10,000 republican plurality. You only guess at the prohibition and labor votes as many towns have not given them.

This is the lightest vote in the presidential year since 1872. In 1888 the governor's vote stood: Republican, 79,401; democratic, 61,348; prohibition, 3,019; labor, 1,526; scattering, 20. Total, 125,384.

The first district with 13 towns to hear from gives Reed 13,827, Ingram, 12,282; Deed's majority, 1,545. The remaining towns will probably increase it to 2,000 or more. All the republican county ticket in Cumberland county save sheriff is elected. The latter is in doubt, but claimed by democrats with chances in their favor.

SKELETON OF A RACER.

Polo Alto's Bones Will Be Exhibited in a California Museum

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—The skeleton of the once famous racer, Palo Alto, will soon grace the museum at Leland Stanford, Jr., university, in company with the skeletons of Electioneer and Occident. The bones of Palo Alto are at present in the Academy of Sciences building in this city.

W. G. Blunt is mounting them in the form of a perfectly-articulated skeleton, which shape they are rapidly assuming. Mr. Blunt is the same naturalist who prepared the skeletons of Electioneer and Occident, and, quite recently, that of the California gray whale, now on exhibition in the academy.

The skeleton of Palo Alto stands five feet and one inch above its pedestal. The bones are perfectly in shape, without a single defect or blemish, except that the five terminal joints of the tail are ossified together and curved upward in a spiral form.

This is something unusual, but it was no inconvenience to the horse during life. The bones are all smaller in proportion to those of other horses, much more porous and lighter in structure.

The skeleton, as a whole, stands higher and looks shorter than is generally the case. The teeth are nearly perfect and not one is missing.

The bones were carefully prepared by a chemical process and look smooth and white. The iron supports upon which the skeleton is mounted, with the screws and fixtures, will be nickel-plated.

Mr. Blunt expects to have the skeleton in perfect order in about two weeks. It will then be sent to Menlo Park and placed in Senator Stanford's private museum at his stables along with the skeletons of Electioneer and Occident. All three of these mounted specimens will remain there until the museum at Stanford university can be prepared to receive them.

The skeleton of Palo Alto will not be placed on exhibition in this city nor anywhere else until the university museum is opened. The flesh of Palo Alto was buried in the center of the plaza at the stables. It is Senator Stanford's intention to erect over the mound a handsome monument.

FILLED WITH SHOT.

A Father Shoots a Negro Who Had Insulted His Daughter.

Dunkirk, O., Sept. 13.—Henry Ravely has shot Barney Jones, colored. Ravely is married and has a large family, among whome are two highly respected young ladies. In the afternoon Jones met Ravely's 11-year-old son, and sent word to the sisters that he would call and take them out walking.

The little boy told his father, who became enraged, procured a shotgun and lay in wait for Jones, who at last appeared on the opposite side of the street. He stopped to talk to some boys, when Ravely rushed accross the street and struck at him with his gun. Jones started to run, but not soon enough to escape the load. Jones was taken home, and, upon examination, about seventy shot were found in his body.

THOUGHT SHE LOVED HIM

It Was But a Delusion, However.

Sad Ending of a Kentucky Romance.

A Bride, Spirited Away From Her Husband, Forgets Him in Two Short Days.

Cincinnati, Sept. 13.—A life romance was brought out in Judge Wilson's court through an application for a writ of habeas corpus.

The writ was filed by Attorney James S. Meyers on behalf of George W. Ott, a butcher of Paris, Ky., who seeks to recover Clara, his pretty young wife of only two days.

Clara is the niece of John Story, a plumber at Seventh and Freeman streets, this city.

She has just turned 17 years and has a voluptuous figure, azure blue eyes and a wealth of blonde hair.

Clara is an orphan, her parents having left her and her sister, Mrs. Wm. Loesch, a snug fortune.

Mrs. Loesch is the wife of a tinner, who does business and resides at No. 429 Colerain avenue.

With Mr. and Mrs. Loesch Clara has made her home for the past five or six years, though her uncle, John Story, was her guardian.

Clara was one of the belles of Camp Washington and had beaux by the score, among them a well-known Seventh street physician, who frequently took her driving.

Clara's heart was not lost here, however. Down in Paris, Ky., lived her cousin, George W. Ott, 23, handsome and ambitious.

He is a butcher and has a comfortable business of his own.

Clara and he were lovers from childhood, but Mr. Story always opposed their intimacy, though for what reason was never apparent to the lovers.

About six weeks ago Clara got permission to visit her aunt at Paris. The aunt in question is a sister of Clara's uncle and father as well as the mother of her lover.

During the visit Clara's lover grew more ardent, and though she is under age, she and her lover, accompanied by their friends, went to a 'squire's office and were married.

Mr. and Mrs. Loesch and Mr. and Mrs. Story were at once notified. On Thursday, two days after the marriage, Clara received a telegram as follows:

"If you want to see your sister alive, come at once. JOHN STORY."

The young couple came and went at once to the Loesch residence where Clara expected to see her sister dying.

Instead, as soon as she got inside the house she was thrust into a room and the door was locked.

Loesch and his wife then ordered young Ott from the house, threatening violence if he ever returned. Ott left the house and returned to Paris, where he old his story to his uncle, John Foster, a wealthy trotting horse breeder.

Foster came to this city, accompanied by Ott. They called on Detective Billy Morrison and stated their case.

Morrison at once consulted Attorney Meyers, and an application for a writ of habeas corpus was made before Judge Wilson, summoning the bride, her sister and Loesch.

Judge Wilson allowed the writ, making it returnable at 1 o'clock. Armed with the writ and a revolver Deputy Sheriff Abe Trost started for the Loesch residence on Colerain avenue, accompanied by Detective Morrison and Mr. Foster.

When they arrived there Loesch denied all knowledge of the girl and her whereabouts, referring the deputy sheriff to her guardian, John Story. Finally he acknowledged that the girl was in the house, but said she was too sick to be seen.

Deputy Trost was satisfied with this, and was about to leave, despit the fact that the writ of habeas corpus called for her body to be in court at 1 o'clock.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Loesch, who was sick, or pretended to be, came down stairs to see what was the matter. Detective Morrison, well used to old-time tricks, refused to take Loesch's word about the condition of the girl and insisted on her being taken to court in the carriage at once or having a certificate from a physician that she was too ill to be removed.

Loesch did not seem over-anxious to call in a physician, and Detective Morrison insisted on seeing the girl.

At this Deputy Trost became very important and asserted that he would assume charge of the case, though he gave every opportunity for the girl to be spirited away before he served his summons on her.

Finally Loesch consented to allow Trost to see the girl, and he went up-stairs. In half an hour he came down, saying that she consented to go to court, but only in company with her guardian.

Meanwhile Story had been telephoned to and started for Camp Washington. Morrison and Foster returned to the city on a car, leaving the carriage for Trost to bring Mrs. Ott and Story to town in.

When the party arrived in court, Judge Wilson took the girl into his private room and had a talk with her. She said that when she was married she thought she loved her husband but she learned since that it was only a fancy which has passed away She said she would not return to live with her husband, and under the circumstances Judge Wilson was compelled to dismiss the writ.

GRAND ARMY BOYS.

Preparations for the Annual Encampment.

One Hundred Thousand Veterans Are Expected to be in Line.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Next week the veterans of the union forces engaged in the civil war will be here 100,000 strong. The parade on Tuesday will be the greatest, except one, ever marched on this continent. That one exception is the grand review in Washington of the union armies at the close of the war in the spring of 1865. It is not expected that the Grand Army of the Republic ever again will make so great a muster and parade as that of next Tuesday is to be.

Col. Peck, chairman of the committee on accommodations, says that his committee have had application for accommodations for 75,000 men, and that free quarters have been provided for 50,000 of these. The rest have been furnished quarters for which they will pay a reasonable charge. The committee has provided bunks and eating houses at Camp Alger, in Monumental park, for 12,894 veterans from the west, and at Camp Farragut, in Garfield park, for 11,808 eastern veterans.

The meals at these camps will cost the veterans $1 a day for three hot and abundant meals. The committee have provided 24,000 free quarters in the school houses of the city, and in the armories 2,000 more. The veterans at the school houses have made their own arrangements for board adjacent to their quarters.

Besides, Washington has scores of eating houses and lunch rooms. All the free quarters have been taken and the committee have many more applicants than quarters. The latest date at which application could be made for free quarters was Aug. 31. Of this the posts throughout the country were told in two successive circulars sent out to them by the committee. But the committee still has some 30,000 quarters in private houses for which the charge for lodging to be paid to the people in the house is about $1 a night.

At the last encampment—that at Detroit—about 11,000 veterans came on without previous announcement, and quarters had to be found for them. The committee is holding these 30,000 pay quarters for such an emergency. Veterans not provided with quarters will report immediately on arrival, and will be assigned pay quarters at these private houses. The committee on accommodations has a big intelligence office shanty right close to the Pennsylvania depot. The committee also will have members of it at all the depots to receive veterans.

The great parade takes place next Tuesday. The business meeting of the Grand Army will be at Albaugh's opera house on Wednesday. A grand reception, by ticket, will be held at the pension building Thursday evening. The reunion of army corps, divisions, etc., will be on the white house lot on different days during the week. Some 2,000 of the old army chaplains are to be here, and their reunion promises to be the star attraction of the series.

BOURKE COCKRAN.

He Will Speak to the People of Ohio.

Senator Hill's Warmest Friend to Open the Campaign in the Buckeye State.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Bourke Cockran is to speak at Woodsdale park, near Cincinnati, October 1.

Bourke Cockran, to look at, is a smooth-faced, well-favored, fat dumpling of a boy, and one is surprised to learn that he is so old as 38 years. He has no neck to show, and his great big head, set snug on his round shoulders, strikes the beholder as something remarkable.

For fervid, impassioned oratory Mr. Cockran beats all his fellow-congressmen, except, maybe Tom Reed, and there are few men, if any, in the United States who excel him in this ability.

As one could tell from his name, William Bourke Cockran is an Irishman. He was born on the old sod, and spent the first 17 yers of his life there and in France. For the first few years after his arrival in New York he taught school and read law at the same time. He was admitted to the bar in New York city in 1876, when he was 22 years old, and at once took a prominent part in local politics as a member of Tammany.

He made his debut as a national orator at the democratic national convention at Chicago in 1884, where his speech on the seating of the Tammany delegates captivated the audience and astonished all who did not already know his oratorical ability. He was a member of the Fiftieth congress (1878-9), and is one of the leaders of his party in the present congress. He is the friend, the counselor and the confident of Senator David B. Hill, of New York.

Mr. Cockran is married. During the sessions of congress Mrs. Cockran resides with him there, and the twain are gracefully prominent in the social life of the capital.

TWENTY-CENT GAS RATE

Approved at the Meeting of the Councilmen

Last Night — Street Commissioner Bower Allowed Another Extension—St. Clair Street Bridge Fight.

The ordinance fixing a 20-cent rate for natural gas was given another overhauling at the meeting of the council last evening.

Councilman Neuendorf offered an amendment to the ordinance, making the contract expire at the end of one year. Councilman Gill offered a further amendment making the time of expiration, September 1, 1893. This was adopted.

Councilman Gill then moved a 15-cent rate for schools and city and county purposes. This was defeated, and the ordinance as amended was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Daly, Doner, Felker, Gill Manchester, Miller, Neuendorf, Rutherford, Schmuhl, Tanner, Taylor, Walker, 12.

Nays—Coleman, Schmitt, Osborne Morris, Lee, Hake, 6.

The St. Clair street bridge, erected by the Lake Shore Railway company, is completed, but the bed of the structure not being in line with the roadway grade, the council decided to take the matter in hand and compel the company to remedy this evil, and to that end, the city solicitor was instructed to apply for an injunction restraining the company from completing the work until the work can be done properly. There was considerable discussion as to whether the city or the property holders interested should give security for damages, but Mr. Reed finally consented to give the security himself.

The awarding of the contracts for the fire engine house was discussed loud and long. Sam Kohn, attorney for G. D. O'Neill, appearing in behalf of that gentleman and claiming that the contract for the Broadway house which was awarded to John Derbeck, should have been given to his client, O'Neill's bid being the lowest. He succeeded in getting a contract drawn up, giving the award to O'Neill. The report of the committee on the other houses was approved.

The following resolutions were adopted: To instruct the street commissioner to repair Cherry street at the intersection of the alleys where the pipe line has crossed; to put a sewer in the alley between Newberry and Larkin streets; to expend $1,000 in dredging the river near Wabash elevator, No. 5; to lay a sidewalk on the south side of Wabash street between Bell avenue and the M. C. railroad; to confirm the contract for paving Beacon street.

The resolution to pave Jefferson street between Superior and Eleventh streets was lost.

The street commissioner is to be allowed an extension of time for trial, the customary notice not having been served.

To Avoid Contagious Diseases.

It is of the utmost importance to strengthen the body. A healthy body will much sooner withstand the ravages of contagious diseases, cholera, la grippe, etc., than a weak frame. The genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract is acknowledged in this respect to be the best tonic beverage and is especially recommended for invalids, where a delicate yet strengthening tonic is necessary to build up a debilitated constitution. One dozen bottles of Johann Hoff's Malt Extract are equal in nutritive and tonic qualities to one cask of ale or porter, without being intoxicating. It is beneficial alike for man, woman or child.

Prof. Prosper De Pietra Santa, of Paris, says: "As a large number of patients lack the necessary power to digest solid food, and would through the use of stimulants be merely excited and weakened, therefore I regard it of immense value to the practitioner to bring to his aid a nutritious tonic and remedy like the Johann Hoff's Malt Extract, which will act not only as a tonic, but as a nutrient as well, and which is less exciting than wine as a stimulant."

Be sure to obtain the genuine, which has the signature of "Johann Hoff" on the neck of every bottle.

WHITECAPS.

Arlington, Ore., Sept. 13.—Whitecaps recently attempted to kill Herman Scheunert, a German rancher. Last night they burned two large barns belonging to James L. Kent, with whom Scheunert had been stopping since the attempt on his life was made. A lynching will be probable should the miscreants be discovered.

SEVEN THOUSAND.

Large Crowd to See Champion Corbett.

Suillivan Has Accepted the Benefit.

The Californian Will Enter the Ring and Show What He Can Do—General Notes.

New York, Sept. 13.—Seven thousand people showered their united applause upon James J. Corbett, the new champion of the pugilistic world, in Madison Square Garden last night.

They waited patiently for his appearance, which was deferred enough to test their good nature. They were not cheered by the announcement that the two 10-round bouts for $1,000 would not go on because they were in violation of the law, and not in conformity with Inspector Byrnes' idea of good order. Instead Prof. Donaldson annouced that there would be three and four-round bouts.

It was 10:20 o'clock when Manager Brady came on the raised platform in the middle of the garden. He was greeted with loud cheers. A minute later Corbett himself, attired in his boxing trunks, with a bath towel wrapped around his shoulders, followed. The applause which greeted him was not only wildly enthusiastic, but was long and generous. Brady spoke as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: I have in my hands a letter from John L. Sullivan, who for twelve years has held the title of champion of the world. On the day following Mr. Sullivan's defeat the champion sent him a note offering to spar in this place on Saturday evening. Mr. Corbett has nothing but the kindliest feeling toward Mr. Sullivan and no one recognizes more than the new champion the steady merit of the man whom he defeated. Mr. Corbett hopes that Mr. Sullivan's benefit will be a tremedous success. I will now read Mr. Sullivan's letter.

"'Mr. James J. Corbett, Coleman House, city: In reply to your letter dated New Orleans, September 8, 1892, would say I accept your proposition to spar at the Madison Square Garden on Saturday evening, September 17. Awaiting your reply.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

Brady had to make his speech to both sides of the house, while Corbett sat in his corner facing Jim Daly and smiled. "Mr. Corbett's reply,' continued Brady, "is that he will be here on Saturday night and spar."

This brought forth loud cheers and also brought Corbett to his feet. "I thank you all," said the new champion, "for the splendid reception you have given me. I sincerely hope that Mr. Sullivan will succeed in all his undertakings. All that I can say is that I will be perfectly satisfied if I can protect the heavy-weight championship as long as he has done."

Louder cheers followed and Jim also had to repeat his speech to the other side of the house. Professor Mike Donovan and Billy Delaney, Corbett's trainer, were presented to the audience by Manager Brady, and then Corbett and Daly sparred three rounds each of a minute's duration. The champion showed to the best advantage his wonderful agility and elicited loud cheers by the manner in which he evaded Daly's blows. After the sparring Corbett retired and the audience scattered in good order. Mrs. Corbett and a party of friends occupied a box during the exhibition.

Elmira, N. Y., Sept. 13.—Harrison Nickerson publishes a challenge to James Corbett to fight to a finish at any time and place in this state the latter may desire. Nickerson, who was born in Chemung county, is a woodsman on the west branch of the Susquehanna river. He is six feet six and one-half inches tall, weighs 195 pounds and is 23 years of age. He offers to fight for any amount not to exceed $50,000. He says he has sparred with both Sullivan and Corbett.

Thousands of dollars will be saved by using diamond dyes. The following list of colors is especially popular this fall:

Fast black, silk, wool, or cotton.
Fast brown, dark, seal, gold.

These twelve dyes, as well as the thirty others, are so simple and easy to use that there is no excuse for any woman to wear a faded or shabby gown.

WAS A FAMILY AFFAIR.

Fatal Quarral Results Over Children's Quarrels.

Greenville, Miss., Sept. 13.—J. Bush, a blacksmith, was probably fatally stabbed yesterday by Santiago de Navarro, a barber. The trouble originated in a dispute between the children of the two men. The women of the two households took up the dispute and Mrs. De Navarro attacked Mrs. Bush with a knife. Mr. Bush arrived just in time to save his wife. Then the men fought and Bush was stabbed by De Navarro as stated.

DROWNED.

Cincinnati, Sept. 13.—Two young ladies named Porch, living in Campbell county, Ky., two miles from Licking river, were drowned in the Licking river Sunday evening. They left their home at 6 a. m., to visit friends in Kenton county, about two miles from the river. They were returning across the Licking alone in a skiff when it capsized. Both ladies perished. Their bodies were recovered this morning.

FIGHT WITH A BEAR.

After the Brute Had Killed Three Dogs He Retreated Wounded to a Cave.

Shepardsville, Ky., Sept. 13.—While in the Knobs recently hunting John Deely and William Hamilton heard their dogs barking furiously, and, coming up with them, found them engaged in fighting a large black bear. Two of the dogs were dead, and while the men were looking on the bear killed another. Hamileon shot at the bear, but it only served to make him more fierce. A shot from Deely took effect in the shoulder and caused the bear to leave the dogs and take after the men. Failing to overtake them he took refuge in a cave.

Numerous sheep, hogs and even small calves have been missed by the farmers living in that vicinity, and it is thought the bear has killed and carried them off. Sometime ago a party of young people from this place went to the Knobs to a Sunday school picnic, and were chased by a huge animal of some kind, and it is supposed it was the bear.

HIGH ART UNAPPRECIATED.

The West is Yet Wild and Woolly.

Excited Citizens of Oakland, Cal., Tear Down a Banner Adorned With Nude Figures.

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 13.—An education in art has been declined by the people of Twenty-third avenue, this city. The opportunity for study of classic statuary has been cast aside. Politics and art were allied in this eastern district of Oakland for just one day. The Hilborn club was organized soon after the nomination for congress of S. G. Hilborn. A banner was displayed across the street in front of the headquarters of the Hilborn club. On this banner the word "club" was painted in huge letters. In fact, the word "club" would be the feature of the banner but for the decorations of the letters forming the word, and these decorations were so striking that they diverted attention from the letters to the pictorial embellishment.

Within a perimeter of the "C" was pictured a beautiful but highly colored young woman sliding down the lower curve of the letter. None of the upper or lower curves of the sliding young woman were hidden. She was apparently sliding for a towel immediately after having left the bath.

Standing alongside the "L" was another young woman, erect and equally shameless. Within the "U" were pictured two highly decorative women, but none of their decoration was in the form of garments. The effect of Delsarte training was indicated in the attitude of their arms. Through the lines of the final big "B" was eatwined a willowy figure, not uch obscured by the letter and not in any way obscured by anything else.

On each of the lower corners of the banner was a scroll, at first sight apparently mere decorations. Careful study of these scrolls would show some letters in them, and investigation further might show that the letters on one corner spelled out "For Congress," and on the other corner "S. G. Hilborn."

From Twenty-second avenue even to Twenty-fourth avenue all society was aroused at the appearance of the pictures on the banner. The banner remained outside the club for just one day. Mr. Hilborn hoped that the club named for him contains none but voters, and none of those whose pictures were on the wall could cast a vote, though they might have influence.

The next night the banner was cut down from its elevated position and high art was lowered. The members of the club who have lofty artistic purposes are incensed, and declare that exponents of democracy were the forces that tore down the banner. Some republicans say that other republicans took the banner down because it shocked them. Mr. Miller, who presented the banner to the club, is grieved almost to the tearful degree. The republicans of Twenty-third avenue who are artfully appreciative have hired a detective to find out who cut the ropes, and, if possible, to recover the banner. The search is now in progress.

WILL ALL GO OUT.

Big Strike on the Reading Possible.

The Engineers Will Lead in the Movement and Other Departments Will Follow.

Philadelphia, Sept. 13.—Chief P. M. Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who is here with Chief Wilkins, of the Order of Railway Conductors, and P. H. Morrisey, representing Chief Wilkinson, of the Order of Trainmen, and a grievance committee of Reading employes, said that a conference would be held, with President McLeod, of the Reading. As to its purpose, Mr. Arthur said: "We do not know what the outcome will be, but hope to see the differences between the company and its employes amicably adjusted. If Mr. McLeod has been correctly quoted by the press, as I believe he has, his statement of the company's position is misleading."

Mr. Arthur then quoted from the published statement made by Mr. McLeod on Friday last as follows: "They ask that we modify our rule or discontinue it altogether with reference to the labor organizations. We do not employ any new men unless they show that they are not members of labor organizations and agree that they will not become connected with any such."

"We are willing to concede," said Mr. Arthur, "the right of the company to impose such conditions upon us when we enter into their service, and also that we have the right to either accept them or reject them. But when the president of the Reading Railroad company calls two men into his office who were not employed under such conditions, and who had consequently never accepted them, asks them if they are members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and because they tell the truth and admit that they are he discharges them, that we declare is unjust. That is what he has done and that is our grievance. Upon that grievance we will take issue with any railroad in this country."

"Will the conductors support you," was asked.

"Yes."

"Will the telegraphers, conductors, switchmen and brakemen?"

"Yes, all the trainmen have promised their assistance, and that is why the chiefs of their organizations are coming here to join in the conference with the railway officials."

"Nine months after having the typhoid fever, my head was perfectly bald. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and before I had used half a bottle, the hair began to grow. Two more bottles brought out as good a head of hair as ever I had. On my recommendation, my brother William Craig made use of Ayer's Hair Vigor with the same good results."—Stephen Craig, 832 Charlotte st., Philadelphia, Pa.

ALARMINGLY FREQUENT.

Are Women Slaves of Weakness.

For eight years I have been constantly under the care of doctors, but found no relief, nor, from what the doctors told me, did I expect to get any better. I was convinced that they did not understand my case, so I thought I would try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and the result has been truly wonderful. I now feel in better health than for the last 20 years. During all this time I have been suffering with Malaria, Heart Disease, Kidney and Liver complaints, nervous prostration and sleeplessness. For the three months before taking this wonderful remedy I had been confined to my room, and most of the time to the bed. I feel, with the blessing of God, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has given me a new lease of life and health, and that I am cured of all my troubles. I have a great desire that others may be benefited as I have been, and take every opportunity to recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to the sick. Mrs. E. S. Bogart, Baptist Home, Sixty-eighth street, New York city.

If you feel faint, nervous, dull, tired, languid, low-spirited, lifeless and miserable, experience a faintness, sense of fulness or bloating after eating, have irregular appetite, constipated bowels, frequent headaches, wakeful or disturbed and unrefreshing sleep, with weak back, backache, dragging down pains, irregularities, falling etc., go instantly to the drug store and get for $1.00 a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy which is the greatest boon to women ever discovered, and by its use be restored to sound, healthy and vigorous womanhood.

You need not fear to use it, for it is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and it will bring back strength to your nerves, freshness to your complexion, brightness to your eyes, and the bloom of health to your cheeks.

The discoverer of this great remedy, Dr. Greene, the most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th street, New York, can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Call or write him about your case or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

LATE MARKETS.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 413,809 bus and at five other western points 943,910 bus, aggregate 1,357,719 bus. On the corresponding Tuesday in 1891 the receipts at the same points were 1,464,562 bus, including 772,189 bus of northwest wheat, leaving 692,373 bus from the other five points, compared with 943,910 bus to-day.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were wheat 303,832 bus and flour to an aggregate of 470,000 bus.

English markets are dull and lower for wheat, and firm and higher for corn.

The Markets To-Day.

Referring to statistics of flour and wheat on ocean passage, which show a decrease of 504,000 bu., it may be said that the imports into the United Kingdom in the same week were more than 1,000,000 in excess of average requirements besides sales of home grown wheat. The importations on the continent are now increasing, which is not strange, considering the price of wheat. The importations of corn have largely decreased, which may account for an advance in Liverpool markets.

Bradstreets' statement of wheat accumulations, which will be found herein, are very interesting, showing, as they d?, an unprecedented movement of wheat. We emphasize these statements by one of our own, taken from our files. The receipts of wheat from August 1 to September 10, inclusive, in 1892, at Toledo, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Louis were 35,467,337 bu, against 29,383,337 bu. in 1891. This excludes the movement of northwestern wheat, which has also been much in excess of 1891 in the same time.

Expected frost, to the damage of corn, has again been a potent factor in the corn market, under which, prices made a sharp advance. The advance on corn supplemented with expected decrease in winter wheat gave new strength to wheat and the markets are advanced. If our receipts are curtailed it will tend to give more confidence to men of capital to invest in wheat at these low prices.

Foreign markets are reported as closing higher.

In New York, December wheat closed at 83 1-8c, a gain of 3-8c, September corn at 57 3-8c, a gain of 1 1-4c, October at 56 7-8c, a gainof 1 3-4c.

In Chicago, October wheat closed at 74 3-8@74 1-2c, a gain of 3-8c, December at 76 5-8@76 3-4c, a gain of 3-8c, September corn at 48 3-4c, a gain of 1 3-4c, October at 49 1-4c, a gain of 1 5-8c, October oats at 34 1-4c, a gain of 1-4c.

In Toledo, the trading in wheat futures continues light, and while the prices realized to-day are a little better, there has not been much change of sentiment on the market, or much spirit in the deal. On the regular board we closed at an advance on September of 1-4c, October 1-4c, December about 3-8c and May 1-2c. On the call September sold at 76 3-8c, December at 78 3-4c and May at 84c. On the regular board September sold at 76 1-4c and at clos ethat was bid, October at 76 1-2c with buyers, December at 78 3-4c to 79c; at close 78 3-4c was bid and 79 asked. May at 84 1-8c, closing at 84 1-4c. Cash wheat was very quiet and there was less doing. No. 2 soft sold at 76 1-4c, and that was bid; No. 3 soft at 68 1-4, and that was bid; No. 4 soft at 62c; rejected No. 1 at 64c to 65 1-2c; No. 1 white at 76c; No. 3 at 69c; red and white No. 2 at 74c.

Corn—No. 2 at 48 3-4c.

Taken to the Home.

Little Edwin Tenny, the 5-year old child who has been in the police station since Friday last, was yesterday sent to the Children's home at Miami by the Humane officials. His father and mother are both drunkards, and his grandmother refused to care for him. He is a very bright litte fellow. When asked by a Bee how he put in his time at the police station, he said: "They put me in a room with a lot of big boys, but I didn't cry till one of 'em pulled a wart off my hand and it bled awful, and they said I was going to die." "Where is your father?" "Oh, he's off on a drunk," replied the child, in a tone that implied a drunk was an every-day occurrence with him. Nevertheless he is an innocent baby, and it would have seemed more fitting to put him in the matron's care than to have locked him up like a criminal.

Under the kind care of Mrs. Neiss he will undoubtedly develop into a good boy.

In the Hands of the Circuit Court.

The case of Marcus Gitskey against Ohio was submitted in circuit court yesterday afternoon. This case involves quite an important question in criminal practice. The case originated in police court. Gitskey was arrested, charged with keeping his clothing store open on Sunday. He was convicted and fined $5 and costs. The defense demanded a jury trial, which was denied by the court. The case was appealed to common plea court on error, the defense holding that the court erred in refusing to allow a trial by jury. The case was tried in common pleas court to Judge Pugsley, who sustained the ruling of the police court and affirmed the judgment. The case was then appealed to the circuit court on the same ground, where it is now pending.

THE GENIAL COL. TAYLOR,

Democratic Candidate for Secretary of State, Drops Into Toledo.

Col. W. A. Taylor, democratic candidate for secretary of state, is in the city today looking upon the republican congressional convention. In conversation with a Bee, the Clonel stated that the fight in progress in Toledo to-day was not dissimilar to the condition of things prevailing among the republicans all over Ohio. "On the other hand," said Col. Taylor, "the democratic party is united and harmonious, and this cannot fail to bring about good results on election day. Wherever I have traveled throughout the state, there is a confidence among democrats which is refreshing, to say the least."

Talking on local affairs, the democratic leader was of the opinion that, with the nomination of a popular candidate for congress and a strong county ticket, the Ninth district would be represented by a democrat and Lucas county redeemed from the control of the enemy.

Col. Taylor will go to Orrville to-morrow.

"DON'T BURY THE GIRL

"Until I Have Made An Investigation,"

Says Coroner Reckwith, Just Before the Funeral of Mary Surles, a 17-Year-Old Girl Residing on Michigan Street.

Yesterday morning Detective Hall presented himself to the chief and stated that he had a clue in an abortion case that he would like to work up. He was told to go ahead and after a short consultation with Coroner Beckwith and Health Officer Fisher, he did so.

The investigation resulted in the arrest of Dr. G. W. Mingos and Henry Luitman. Opposite their names on the blotter is written "held on suspicion."

The young girl whose sad unnatural death made this investigation necessary, was Miss Mary Alice Surles, of 435 Michigan street. She died Saturday last, and the notice of her death filed in the health office by Dr. Stevens, Dr. Mingos' partner, says that she died of intermittent fever.

After the young girl's death rumors were circulated that reached the ears of the authorities. The funeral was to have taken place yesterday afternoon, and everything was in readiness for the burial when word was received from the coroner to the effect that the body should not be interred, but placed in a vault instead.

A post-mortem examination was then made on the remains and it was discovered beyond a doubt that death resulted from an abortion.

Mary was a handsome young girl of 17 years and had been keeping company with Henry Luitman, a young man about her own age, of the dandy tough order, a dashing Beau Bromwell at cheap masquerades. He is fairly good looking and the young girl foolishly became attached to him. Mary's mother did not know that her daughter went with Luitman.

About ten days ago the condition of Mary was discovered, and Dr. Mingos was called to attend her. The doctor says she was suffering from rheumatism, but did not get along under the treatment, and his partner, Dr. Stevens, was given the case.

Dr. Mingos has been suspected of having been connected with like cases before, and although attempts were made to prove something against him, a case could not be made out with the evidence then at the command of the prosecution.

Drs. Tracy and Aris made an examination this morning and found that the suspicions of the authorities were correct. Coroner Beckwith commenced the inquest and took such evidence as will in his judgment be strong enough to bring about a conviction.

The two prisoners could not or did not furnish bail, and are locked up with their thoughts behind the city prison bars.

A STRIKING FEATURE

Of our Carpets is the phenomenal figures at which we are selling them. There isn't any other name for these figures—they are phenomenal. They are figures that make figures of speech superfluous. It is almost always the case that, as the temperature goes up, prices go down. We are not responsible for a fall in prices. If you know anything of values, if you know what is as good as two good things usually are, if you know an unparalleled opportunity when it comes your way, you won't make any mistake about seizing this one and seizing it in a hurry.

By order of the County Central Committee.
O. A. BROWNING, Chairman.
C. W. MURPHY, Secretary.

We trust the wetness of the day will not dampen the ardor of young Hercules Ashley. Let the youthful sport proceed.

Russell Harrison has a big job on his hands in Montana. Current political opinion out there is that Cleveland will capture the electoral vote of the new state.

The republican organs of Toledo are not singing together in sweet harmony the tune of convention pledges. But the Ashley organ has the biggest crank and makes the most noise.

A Jersey jury couldn't agree, but didn't agree to disagree until the twelve fell to fighting. The judge lined them up against a wall, threatening to jail the whole lot and then discharged them and began over.

The Canadian authorities at Quebec and other ports of entry are taking excellent precautions against the introduction of cholera. It is the fight of safety on both sides of the border, and there is no division of sentiment in this time of danger.

Even republicans admit that Altgeld will be elected governor of Illinois. And Peck, governor of Wisconsin. And Russell, governor of Massachusetts. It will be singular if the democrats do not also capture one of them on the electoral vote.

A New York physician having said that carrying a newspaper medicated with carbolic acid is a good precautionary measure against cholera, the New York Record forthwith put the solution in its press room wetter and now every subscriber is protected with the loud smelling stuff. Great schemers are those Record people.

The New York authorities call attention to the danger of cholera lurking in foreign currency and advise the utmost caution on the part of bankers and others in handling the stuff until it is thoroughly fumigated. There are hundreds of ways by which the germs of this dreaded disease may linger in this country through the coming winter months and break out in many places next year. It will be a wonder if the United States shall be free from the scourge another year.

Here is a go for those who affect to protest against scientific fist slugging. Rev. Dr. S. J. McPherson, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Chicago, doesn't like the brutality of pugilism, but admires the manly courage of Corbett and says so in public print and also says there must be a good as well as a bad side to the gladitorial art. Like every other man, woman and child he met he had kept himself well posted on the big events that decided three championships in New Orleans last week.

There is not any cholera in Detroit or near Detroit, but there is a conflict of authority between the local and state health officers that threatens to breed trouble and disease across the river. A car load of immigrants that passed the port of New York arrived on a Canadian Pacific train and were permitted by the state inspection to cross at Detroit. The city health officers claim superior authority and refuse their admission to Michigan. Thereupon the railway authorities dump the immigrants at Walkerville, without food, and they would starve except for the charity of the citizens. It would seem that this conflict of authority in the face of an epidemic of disease might be avoided. A willing conference would settle all differences about which the public care nothing. But it is the old story of a man clothed with a little brief authority. He becomes mighty, in his own estimation.

With the eloquence of partisan language of which the Inter-Ocean is master, the grand opening of the Ohio campaign at Woodsdale last Saturday was described by that journal. What though the Inter-Ocean knew it was telling a whopper, it made no difference. It was the particular occasion for the organ to tell a lie and it made a wholesale job of it at one jump an old-timer was pictured, the good old days when people went hundreds of miles in gaily decorated wagons to "hear the issues of the day ably discussed." Hundreds of thousands were there, according to the Inter-Ocean, and the auspicious opening of the Buckeye campaign must start the ball rolling to wonderful majorities two months hence. Alas, that the organs are discordant. The Commercial Gazette, the far and away leading organ of the republicans of Ohio, the nearest printing office to the unbottled eloquence at Woodsdale, says the meeting was an absolute fizzle, a failure in everything except the three good speeches of Reid, McKinley and an ex-governor of ballot box notoriety. According to the Commercial Gazette the attendance—men, women and children, did not exceed 2,500. A grand opening, a great effort. How auspicious. Do it some more.

THE TWENTY-CENT ORDINANCE.

The council, by a vote of twelve to six, passed the twenty-cent gas ordinance last night. If the board of aldermen concur, the vexed question will probably be setteled for a time. Inasmuch as the thousands of customers of the Northwestern company are satisfied with the rate which is now charged there is no reason for longer delay in fixing the rate by ordinance.

IMPRISONED IN SHIPS.

There is something pitiful in the cholera situation in New York harbor. Thousands of well people are on ship board homeward bound, almost at the doors of their domiciles, so near and yet so far. They are detained, and very properly so, for the protection of their friends and neighbors and countrymen on land against the spread of the dread disease. Yet these thousands of imprisoned Americans are helpless in their present condition, have committed no wrong, are in constant danger of contracting disease, and have no recourse in law or person. The local authorities are doing all in their power, and by the prompt patriotic impulse of the Governor of New York suitable quarters for the passengers of all the incoming steamers are provided on Fire Island. But even this haven of promise is denied the distressed travelers. The local residents threaten to burn the hotels if the passengers are landed. Verily are these people wanderers, wanderers afloat, with land all around them, yet no land upon which they may safely stand. In the name of safety they are denied safety. The hand of government and the act of local authority is against them. If they shall escape disease and death they will be most fortunate.

A QUIET CAMPAIGN.

Did you ever see anything like it, is asked a hundred times and the reply invariably is No. The oft-said, "presidential years disturb business relations," does not apply this year. Some states have hurrah campaigns yearly, some communities, even, can raise a big noise over the election of a constable; but here we are, this great American republic, past the middle of a presidential campaign, nearly three months since the nominations were made, and there is positively no excitement whatever. Nor is the quiet restricted to spots. Even Indiana, which is noted for the observance of the old-time campaigns, where the campfires are early lighted and never go out, where mass meetings are held in every township—is without excitement. In Ohio there is nothing doing. A meeting here and there is mentioned in newspapers, but even the announcement is forgotten before the meeting takes place.

It is difficult to analyze this quiet. It may be apathy, indifference and don't-care-ativeness. It may signify a reserved determination to upset things generally. But whatever it is, the feeling is general and covers the whole country.

We have faith to believe that this quiet is not portentious of democratic disaster. There is a deep undercurrent of opposition to the high tax boastings of the dominant party that must burst forth in mighty protest at the election. People stand about so much oppression and then rebel. The tax payers of this country are imposed upon to the extreme limit. The laws are wholly for the classes and against the masses. The season of protestation is at hand and the signs of the times point to such a rebellion of ballots as will utterly destroy the party of bad measures and un-American methods. The silent influence of the ballots will be more potent than the destructive power of the bullet. The ballot is the freeman's weapon of offense and defense, and used with intelligence, is the agency of good government. We believe there is method in the quiet of the people this year and believe that surprises are in store for the administrationists. There is hope, democratic hope, in Massachusetts and Illinois, in Wisconsin and the Dakotas. There is certainty in all the states which Cleveland carried in 1884. But the quiet, did you ever see the like before? Indeed not, and probably never will again. It is the freak of American politics on the surface. It may be something mighty beneath.

PETITION IN ERROR

To Be Filed in Supreme Court

In the Gas Bond Case—The Enabling Act of the Legislature Declared Unconstitutional—The Case in Brief.

In circuit court yesterday decree was entered in the case of Thomas S. Merrell, against the city of Toledo in accordance with an opinion delivered by the court in chambers last July.

This was an application for an injunction restraining the city from selling $100,000 of gas bonds, the issue of which was authorized by a special act of the legislature passed April 7, 1892.

The court refused to grant the injunction on the ground that the law was constitutional.

Attorneys Smith and Kinney have prepared a petition in error in the case, which will be filed in supreme court at once.

The plaintiff in error in this petition sets up that the circuit court erred in holding the law constitutional and allege that it is unconstitutional for the reason that the act was special legislation conferring corporate power; that if the act can be applied to any other city beside Toledo it is constitutional, otherwise it is not constitutional.

RAILROAD COLLISION.

Upper Sandusky, O., Sept. 13.—A damaging collision occurred on the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo railway north of here. Extra No. 8, a south bound freight, was standing on the track, when its caboose was plowed into by pay train, extra No. 93, south bound. Much damage was done, but no one was injured. The engine was disfigured badly and the caboose and a flat car of No. 5 were thrown from their trucks and considerably wrecked. The damage will amount to several thousand dollars.

SENATOR GIRARD DEAD.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 13.—Senator Girard, aged 73 years, died at his residence here after a short illness. He has represented Manitoba at Ottawa for many years.

PETOSKEY IN SEPTEMBER.

The Beauty of Summer With the Charms of Autumn.

Grass as Green as in June and Fruit Trees Loaded—Hay Fever Victims and Location Seekers the Chief Tourists Just Now.

When I left Toledo in company with my old fiend-friend—my face more or less resembling that of John L., through frequent and necessary application of 'kerchief to nose and eyes, I said to my h. f., which stands for hay fever, "it's our outing; the lakes and lands and woods and ways and towns and tramps of the North Michigan resorts have been pictured so many times by tourists there is nothing more to say." 'Twas a dreadful mistake. No sooner am I domiciled in my friend's chamber, from the windows of which I look over miles of the beautiful blue bay—the Indians' "Little Traverse"—out to Alligator head, fairly floating in a soft purple haze, than the old spell is upon me, and the question is not "what shall I tell my Bee readers," but what shall I omit to say lest I bore them with repetition and too much long-range enthusiasm.

A 5 o'clock a. m. train isn't the one to take when you start on a continuous railway journey of 20 hours, more or less. You can't eat breakfast if you get it, and by and by you can't get breakfast when you would eat it. Then you munch a little cold stuff before you get to the 20-minutes-for-dinner time o' day and so manufacture a peculiar kind of headache that a profuse "Dutch Sensitivist" could scarcely describe. In spite of these small discomforts, there is much to enjoy as you ride the length of the Wolverine state on the Michigan Central. At Detroit we changed from the vilest coach that traveler ever dropped his grip in, to a luxurious parlor car. At Bay City we got a good dinner and thence northward the ride is delightful. The wild phlox, scarlet columbine, golden rod and purple asters are a field of beautiful color, picked out with the blades of "good green grass." The blending is peculiarly effective in wide clearings with the second growth of white pine set in, like shrubs, here and there. The ambitious little towns, with names more or less mellifluous and significant, floating their campaign flags from tall poles with an "air" that "practical politicians" in cities know nothing about. It so chanced, by the way, that every flag that met my gaze bore the device, "Cleveland and Stevenson." I didn't put this down in my campaign note book as "a straw," however.

Within a hundred miles of Mackinaw the hay fever began to "let go;" the poor Detroiter in our coach who had wheezed and coughed with asthma, fell asleep as quietly as a child. We had a ball-of-fire moonrise over Mullett lake, a clear, beautiful sheet of water 12 miles long and two miles wide. Its high, green banks are dotted with summer cottages, and it is royal water for fishing.

In one brisk little lumber town we read, across the whole side of a big wooden warehouse, "Richardson's omnivarous store"—black letters on a pale yellow ground. And another: "Smoking and children not allowed on these premises." Thus does the observant traveler run onto evidences of genius and originality in the most unexpected places.

It is nearly dark when the familiar waters and enchanted islands of the Straits are sighted. The Petoskey train waits as usual for the St. Ignace ferry and, in the interim, I negotiate with the baggage man to look up a certain trunk which fails to materialize. Presently a gay party of picnickers from "the other shore" take possession of our coach. What pretty girls, how becomingly gowned and hatted and how bright and quick their repartee. What polite young men, to look after all the details of comfort and toss back laughing replies to the good natured chaffing. I am almost always proud of a bevy of my own young country people. They have a vivacity, ease and grace, and withal a certain kind of dignity peculiar to themselves and possessed by the youth of no other nationality. The French approach the nearest it. How the jollity lightened the single-handed pilgrim moving lonely and alone through "scenes of by-gone days."

In a clean, sweet room, high up in the Cushman house, I had the first night of "deep forgetting sleep," untroubled by sneezes and snuffing-salts, known for weeks. It rained through the night, but the sun shone out gloriously in the morning. The greensward is as fresh and flush as it is in mid-June, the maples show no sign of fading color, and the apple, pear, plum and crab trees are propped to keep the limbs from breaking with their fruit. They have never had a richer fruit year in this section. Never anywhere did I see trees so literally loaded. The town is improving in every particular. New streets have been opened and many handsome new residences built within the two years since I was here.

The Chicago and West Michigan has built a pretty station house and are laying out a park along the bay shore on an extensive scale. Another season will witness a transformation on the south shore. Petoskey has now splendid railway facilities as well as water communication. It was a shame to knock out of the river and harbor bill in the last congress the modest appropriation for the harbor. A breakwater at or near the head of the bay is an absolute need for the northern boats. The wildest water of Lake Michigan is encountered as ships round the straits southward, and the natural harbor of refuge is Little Traverse bay. It is deep, clear water, and needs only the protection from the sweep of west winds to make it an ideal shelter. Those hoodoos of the East who never saw anything west of New England boundary lines prated about "the creeks and ponds" of the north and west and so did the deed, and saved the few thousands to add to other thousands, for bestowal where it would count in a campaign year. The curse of this kind of politics is enough to make one despair of possible honesty in a free form of government.

The cheap excursion rates—think of it: five dollars the round trip from Toledo and six and a half, the round trip from Cincinnati, have brought in many tourists. The gay crowd of the summer—"the season"—little realize that they flit away from the loveliest time of all the year, the months of September and October, on these delightful shores. The air, bracing and full of ozone, is yet soft and bland, the gardens are gay with flowers. The open air band concerts and the hops at the Arlington are not yet discontinued. The autumn haze, a pale tint of amethyst, hangs about the encircling hills and the sun has a "dreamy way" of filtering through it. To eat and sleep, and drink and bathe at the mineral spring, is to renew the vital forces and "grow fat on good things."

Pansies and potatoes grow in this soil and atmosphere to simple perfection. The surplus of fine vegetables and fruits is shipped to towns down the west shore and to Chicago. Petoskey and Charlevoix are great resorts for Chicagoans. A great number of the hay fever and asthmatic patients come from Indiana and Illinois. Many come, every year, from Kentucky and other states south. On the reading table at the Occidental, where we take meals, we see the daily Toledo Bee, and its presence is known in a number of households. Yours,

BERING SEA.

Canada is Preparing Her Answer to the States.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 13.—The minister of marine, Mr. Tupper, is now engaged in preparing material for a counter case to the United States case in connection with the Bering sea arbitration.

The answer from the United States will close the documentary controversy.

The original case of the United States contains a minute history of the Russian ownership of Alaska and a recital of the Russian ukase reserving the Bering sea waters for the use of Russian fishermen and a long argument to show that the right was acquired by the United States government in the purchase. The British case, however, will thoroughly oppose this contention.

FIRST LOVE.

First love, 'tho' very fickle, oftimes hits you very hard,
You've suffered from the same complaint.
You meet, you love, you bill and coo, write letters by the yard,
You've suffered from the same complaint.
Perhaps you meet in after years, she's old and cross and fat,
She's got a dozen freckled kids, does washing for a flat:
You raise your hands in horror, was I ever stuck on that!
But you've suffered from the same complaint.

She told him that her belt was pinned,
As close to him she drew,
And when his arm stole round her waist
He felt that this was true.

I have a little cottage with the roses climbing round,
And a pretty little garden where the blossoms all abound:
The sky is brightest azure now, and I am also blue,
For while the dew is falling, there's the rent a falling due.

She sat at a table opposite
The seat I always occupied.
Her dress was silk, a perfect fit,
With frills of lace attached to it;
Her silvery speech was full of wit;
Her face by smiles was beautified.

I marked her eyes, her satin skin,
The while my heart gave many a throb:
Her snowy brow, her dimpled chin,
And wished that I her heart might win.
Alas! why did she then begin
To eat her corn from off the cob?

THE GAS TRUSTEES

Get a Full Board of Five Once More.

President Greene Announces the Standing Committees—Routine Business Passed Upon.

The natural gas trustees held a lengthy session yesterday afternoon, but it was one of those strictly "private affairs," where everything is under the hat.

The entire board was present for the first time in several weeks. President Greene occupied the chair. It was announced that the September session would be devoted to committe work. The doors were therefore closed on reporters.

One of the Strauss Bros., of Fostoria, who is interested in the gas pumps, was before the board for upward of an hour and pumps was evidently the subject under discussion.

At 5 o'clock the board was still in session and the reporters were informed that the regular meeting would be held at 7:30 p. m.

The board, however, seemed to have reconsidered this idea, for at 7:30 the reporters were informed by an employe that the regular meeting was held immediately after the departure of the newspaper men.

The board is after gas, and an effort will be made to have pumps in operation before the snow flies.

The secretary's record of the meeting gives an account of the business transacted.

The manager was authorized to locate a regulator at the corner of Erie and Ash streets.

A schedule of claims amounting to $197.73 was ordered paid.

A certificate from the treasurer showed $4,500.66 deposited.

An order was authorized to be drawn to the credit of Kerlin Bros. for $756.92.

President Green announced standing committees as follows:

Finance—Romeis, Barber and Greene.

Judiciary—Barber, Voit and Brown.

Supplies and claims—Brown, Greene and Romeis.

Plant and Price of Gas—Voit, Greene and Romeis.

Gas, Supply, Territory and Right of Way—Voit, Brown and Romeis.

The manager was instructed to make a report of all so-called "dead ends" or points where lines end in the street, and the probable cost of connecting the same.

The manager reported a summons in the case of R. H. Timpany against the city, a suit pending in justice court involving the ownership of a railroad mileage book.

The treasurer's report showed a balance to the credit of the fund of $4,766.52.

THE BIG NESHOTO ASHORE

Fast on the Rocks of Keeweenaw Point.

Important Information for Mariners.

News of the Great Lakes and the Movements of Vessels—Rates and Cargoes.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 13.—On Sunday the owners of the big wooden steamer Neshoto were notified that she was in serious trouble. She passed the Sault at 1:30 o'clock last Friday afternoon, and during the early hours of Saturday morning ran ashore on the rock-bound coast of Keeweenaw point.

An urgent telegram for assistance announced the news, and orders were immediately issued to Capt. Swain, at Cheboygan, to go immediately to her assistance with the tug Favorite. The tug passed the Sault at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon on her way up, and probably reached the wreck early yesterday morning. Capt. Swain has with him a full outfit of steam pumps, etc., and will probably soon have the Neshoto off.

The steamer was coal laden for Duluth, after discharging which she was to load ore at Two Harbors for South Chicago, taking on grain at Chicago for Buffalo.

She was reported as eight feet out forward, with he stern in deep water. There is no telegraph line near the desolate spot where the Neshoto ran ashore, and the quickest way to send news of trouble was to send a boat out into a regular course, which she doubtless lost in one of Lake Superior's dense fogs, to hail a passing steamer and thus send word down to the Sault.

The Neshoto is owned by Robert L. Rhodes and others, for whom she was built in 1889 by the Quayles, of this city. She registers 1,905 tons net, is valued at $135,000, rates A1*, and is said to be fully insured.

Eagle Harbor, Mich., Sept. 13.—The steamer Neshoto, which went ashore Saturday night, is 30 miles below Copper Harbor. Capt. Humphrey was here last night and expected the wrecking tug Favorite to arrive to-day. He hoped to get his steamer afloat within a short time. The Neshoto's bow is in seven feet of water and her stern is in 40 feet, and it is hard to state how long it will take to float her. Capt. Humphrey did not think that she was as yet seriously injured.

Shoals Near Squaw Island.

Secretary George P. McKay, of the finance committee of the Lake Carriers' association, yesterday received the following from Commander Nicoll Ludlow, of Chicago, inspector of the ninth lighthouse district: "Referring to the information you gave me of the steamer Lansing having struck north of Squaw island in 1890, I find some bad places around there; one a 19 1-2 foot lump of boulders and gravel. The foul bottom is quite extensive, and to cover the whole of it, as far as possible, I have placed a red can buoy in 28 1-2 feet of water, 700 yards S. E. 1-2 S. from the shoalest spot I found. There is shoal water to the westward and northward, but I think everything is safe south of a line from Seul Choix lighthouse to this buoy and from the buoy to Simmons' reef light vessel. The position of the buoy is as follows:

Squaw Island lighthouse, S. 7-8 W. 4 7-8 miles.

Squaw Island shoal buoy, S. 1-8 W. 3 1-8 miles.

"I could not set less than 29 feet on the position given by the master of the Lansing as being the place he struck. The 19 1-2-foot spot is five-eighths of a mile northeast from his position. There may be shoaler places, but not south of an east and west line through the buoy."

Duluth.

Duluth, Sept. 13.—Vesselmen are asking 3 1-4 cents on wheat to Buffalo to-day, but shippers are offering only 3 cents.

Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Grain freights hold firm with a good demand for boats at 2 1-2 cents for wheat to Buffalo.

Shippers are not talking of lower rates and some vesselmen think that better figures may be soon paid.

TO FILL DAWES' PLACE

Massachusetts Republicans Talking About His Successor.

It May be Lodge or Barrett or Somebody Else.

Wise Persons Think the Incumbent May Be Considered Out of the Race.

Boston, Sept. 13.—The term of Henry L. Dawes, the senior United States senator from Massachusetts, will terminate on the 4th of March, and already the politicians of the state are actively at work upon the canvass for this place, evidently with the presumption that Mr. Dawes will either not be a candidate or if a candidate will have no material strength in the legislature.

The men who are most prominently named in this connection are Henry Cabot Lodge, who now represents the Seventh district in the lower branch of congress, and William E. Barrett, the speaker of the Massachusetts house of representatives.

Mr. Lodge is well known as a scholar, and is one of the rising men of the state and nation. His friends, who are not only very many, but very influential, have for a long time desired to have him advanced to the important position of senator, which he is well able to fill, not only with grace and dignity, but with marked ability as well. Mr. Lodge is a gentleman of great literary attainments, but he is by no means a recluse. He is young, wealthy and exceedingly popular, for he has stood by his party when many of the men of his class have deserted it. He not only deserves advancement upon the ground of loyalty to the principles of his party, but he has won the right to promotion by valiant service. In his district he has hosts of friends who will not stand by and see him slaughtered, and throughout the state he has admirers who will vote for him on the ground of his recognized ability if for no other reason.

It is probable that the action of the republicans of Revere, in indorsing Mr. Lodge and in calling for a legislative caucus will be followed, to a large extent, in the eastern part of the state, and perhaps elsewhere, and his supporters are confident that the cities of Lynn, Chelsea, Salem and Gloucester will send delegations solid for him.

It may be a question whether the caucus plan, which has been adopted by the supporters of Mr. Lodge, will in the end prove an element of strength in the canvass. They are of the opinion that it will strengthen his side, and in the end secure his election, but there are others who think it will act against Mr. Lodge and result in defeating him.

Mr. Barrett is a newspaper man yet young and full of ambition. He graduated from Dartmouth, secured a position on the Daily Advertiser, and gave such promise that he was quickly promoted to the position of Washington correspondent, a place he filled with marked ability for a number of years. When the Advertiser was reorganized he turned up in the management, and to-day he is not only the principal proprietor of the staid old daily, but the principal proprietor of the lively little Rekid as well. In both positions he has given an excellent account of himself, while he has at the same time been actively engaged in politics, having been successively chosen to the lower branch of the legislature for a term of years, and having each year capped the climax by securing the speakership prize in spite of the efforts of some of the most astute and capable politicians in the state. Mr. Barrett is one of the "get there" men, be it in politics or business, and he has shown not a few of the older heads a point or two that had not occurred to them before. When he sets out to achieve a point you can bank upon his getting there with about as much safety as you can bank upon anything in this mundane sphere.

In the senatorial fight both the friend and opponents of Mr. Barrett concede that unless he is re-elected speaker he cannot enter the race for the senatorial prize. The speaker has, ofcourse, a great advantage in such a contest, for he controls important patronage. Commitee places are to be given out, and members are looking for places which are essential for their success. The opponents of Mr. Barrett are aware of this advantage, and will seek to deprive him of it, by bringing forward some one else for the position of speaker.

Mr. Barrett was unanimously elected speaker last year, and as there is no doubt of his election to the house from his native town of Melrose if he desires a reelection, there is very little doubt of his re-election as speaker of the next legislature—if he desires it.

Gov. Brackett was first named for the house with this project in view, but that plan has evidently been abandoned, as Mr. Bennett, of Everett, is now named for the place. As Mr. Bennett has not fully agreed with his party upon questions of the tariff, it will be seen that this scheme is not a very promising one at the outset. Furthermore, Mr. Bennett is handicapped by the strong position he took last winter against the endowment orders, and he can look for a sturdy opposition from that quarter. He is a man of conceded ability, his integrity has never been questioned, and he would make an efficient, fair and honest speaker, but his chances of securing an election are exceedingly slim.

These are some of the elements that will go to make the fight over the senatorship an unusually interesting one. Other candidates may be selected before the time to vote comes, and we may have such men as ex-Gov. John D. Long and ex-Gov. George D. Robinson.

TO CHICAGO.

The Harrison Monument Can Go Says the Attorney General.

Columbus, O., Sept. 13.—The Harrison statue can be legally taken to Chicago.

Late Saturday night Attorney General Richards received a telegram from John Simpkinson, 660 McMillen street, Cincinnati, asking if, in the attorney-general's opinion, the Harrison Monument commission would be violating the law under which the commission was created should they place the statue in a safe place in front of the Ohio building at Chicago, pending the procurement of a permanent site and pedestal at some point in Hamilton county.

The reply from the attorney-general was favorable. He said this might, in his judgment, be done, if it was without expense to the taxpayer. He further said: "Where you shall keep the statue until you can permanently erect it, is a matter for your discretion."

THE BRAKES FAILED.

Fatal Street Car Accident in St. Louis.

An Electric Trailer Capsizes at a Curve.

Two Passengers Killed and a Large Number Badly Bruised, Some Very Seriously.

St. Louis, Sept. 13.—At 8 o'clock this morning an electric motor with trailer attached was descending the steep incline on Russell avenue, near Ninth street, when the brakes to the motor failed to work owing to the wet and slippery rails, and the car descended the grade at a terrific rate of speed.

The motor rounded the curve at Russell avenue and Ninth street without accident, but the trailer jumped the track and overturned in the gutter.

The cars were filled with passengers and the scene was wildly exciting.

Beneath the overturned trailer was a crushed and bleeding mass of humanity, while on each side of the car were lying persons who had either jumped or been thrown from the car as it tipped over.

Dozens of persons rushed to the rescue of the passengers and lifting the car found that the wreck was a sad one.

Two persons were killed and a dozen badly wounded.

The names of the killed and injured so far as can be learned are:

Killed.

MRS. BARBARA SCHENNING, 2223 Indiana avenue.

Unknown laboring man.

Injured.

Henry Blaine, 2113 State street, leg broken.

H. C. Kronnecker, Victor street, leg broken.

J. L. Densman, 2615 Indiana avenue, legs broken.

Mrs. A. M. Jones, 2015 Penn street, arm broken and internal injuries.

Charles Beyler, 3619 Grand avenue, badly bruised in chest and cut on head.

Peter Hoffman, 4245 Oregon avenue, internal injuries.

Rudolph Hartman, Victor street, badly injured about body.

The dead were removed to the morgue and ambulances quickly carried those injured to the hospitals, where they are being cared for.

SURE OF VICTORY.

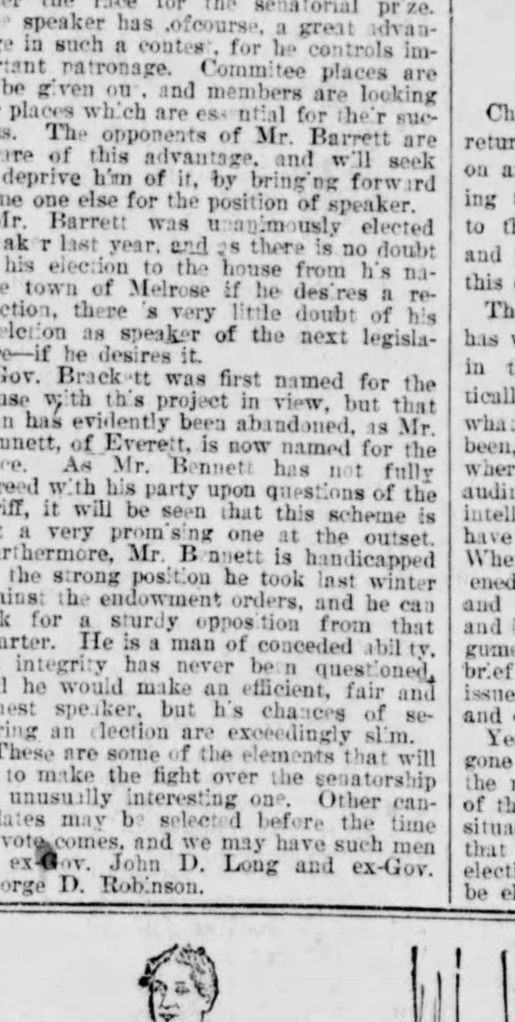
Judge Altgeld Has Confidence in His Election.

He Has Been in Every County in the State, and Sees Nothing to Cloud the Prospects of Democratic Success.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—Judge Altgeld has returned to the city. He will start out on another tour through this state, meeting the voters of Illinois and explaining to them the actual condition of affairs and showing them what the real issue in this campaign are.

The democratic nominee for governor has visited almost every county and town in the state. He has been enthusiastically received everywhere. No matter what the conditions of the weather have been, crowds have poured into the halls where he was advertised to speak. His audieneces have been composed of the most intelligent voters in the state, and they have listened attentively to his arguments. Wherever he has gone he has strengthened the democratic party materially, and his speeches have won for himself and his party hundreds of votes. His arguments have been strong, intelligent, brief and to the point. He has met every issue and disposed of it in a masterly and convincing manner.

Yesterday he said that after having gone over the field personally, meeting the members of the party from one end of the state to the other, and viewing the situation from every point, he considered that there was not the least doubt of his election. He felt confident that he would be elected.



A sad scene with which to terminate a brilliant evening. They have returned from a reception. She had felt restless and nervous during the day, and is suddenly taken with that "faint feeling" so prevalent with our women.

THE LAND OF USED-TO-BE.

Beyond the purple, hazy trees
Of summer's utmost boundaries;
Beyond the sands, beyond the seas,
Beyond the range of eyes like these,
And only in the reach of the
Enraptured gaze of memory,
There lies the land long lost to me—
The land of Used-to-Be.

A land enchanted, such as swung
In golden seas when sirens clung
Along their dripping brinks, and sung
To Jason in that mystic tongue
That dazed men with its melody;
O, such a land, with such a sea,
Kissing its shores eternally,
Is the fair Used-to-Be.

A land where music ever girds
The air with bells of singing birds,
And sows all sounds with such sweet words
That even in the lowing herds
A meaning lives so sweet to me
Lost laughter ripples limpidly
From lips brimmed o'er with all the glee
Of rare old Used-to-Be.

O land of love and dreamy thoughts,
And shining fields and shady spots,
Of coolest, greenest, grassy plots
Embossed with wild forget-me-nots,
And all the blooms that cunningly
Lift their faces up to me
Out of the past; I kiss in thee
The lips of Used-to-Be.

I love ye all, and with wet eyes
Turned glimmeringly on the skies,
My blessings like your perfumes rise,
Till o'er my soul a silence lies.
Sweeter than any song to me,
Sweeter than any melody
Or its sweet echo, yea, all three—
My dreams of Used-to-Be.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

ONE WOMAN'S LIFE.

When she was a little girl her mother died. That was the end of love in her life. Her father was a strange, sullen man, who had a quarrel with the universe and its Creator, and had never settled it.

This one shy, little girl was all the child that had slipped into his life, and her he scarcely noticed, except occasionally in reproof.

After her mother's death the child's life crept along with broken wings, but it did pass somehow, and the little girl was growing into a shy and timid woman, with creeping, apologetic ways, when her father died. She was no more alone than she had been for years, but there was a difference in the loneliness. It is better to have some one who is a care to you than to have no one at all.

She never had a lover. She was neither pretty nor bright, nor vivacious nor clever. She was quite colorless and dreary and monotonous. But she was a woman, and she used to look wistfully at a light-hearted pair of lovers that passed her at night on her way home from work. But it never occurred to her to wish for a lover herself.

With the running years she grew no more faded and colorless and dreary, and perhaps no more hopeless, but she grew older; and the hopelessness of middle life is harder to bear than the hopelessness of youth. It has an element of conviction in it.

Just when the first thought of it came to her she did not know. Perhaps it was the night when, so tired in body and brain that her head reeled and her knees shook under her, she opened the little cupboard at the side of her tiny bed and saw the bottle. The skull and cross-bones on the label didn't suggest the pitiful thing they were intended to.

Instead of the horrible leer, the skull seemed to smile a greeting and a friendly invitation. Her hand shook a little as she shoved the bottle impatiently aside in her search for a special one. But her fingers had closed over it for an instant, nevertheless.

The next night, when she reached the foot of the four long flights that led the way to her cold room up in the dark, she stood still a minute wondering how she could lift herself all that long way, and go on breathing at the top. And the going on with life after she got to the top was just as much of a struggle as the getting there.

"Why must I go on?" she murmured to herself. And then she saw the skull on the label again, smiling at her out of the dark. Again there was no suggestion of terror. Step by step she crept up the long way, pausing at each landing to catch a few minutes of panting, distressed breathing. Then on again until the top was reached and the door that led to the closet-like room. She passed in and turned on the heat at the square hole in the wall and crept close to it. What a substitute for the glowing vitality of a rich, leaping flame! Yet it was all she had ever known in all her life.

To-night it refused to warm her, so she moved heavily about the room still keeping on her wraps. Her supper was in a paper in her hand, and by and by she laid it out on the table. There was bread and a bit of smoked fish and cheese which she tried to eat and then set away with a sigh.

When she opened the cupboard the bottle stood directly before her eyes. "Strange!" she thought, in a dull, disjointed way. "I'm sure I set that bottle one side last night."

She took it out and looked closely at it. It was half filled with a white liquid. What would not a few drops of it do for her! Here was pain, cold, weariness, misunderstanding, utter isolation. There was—what? But just sleep would be passing sweet.

She set the bottle back again and went back to the hole in the wall and sat down. She leaned her hand against the wall and thought a few minutes. "It would be so easy. There is no one to know," she was saying to herself a few minutes later. "There are only the bottle and I to guess, and I could put the bottle where it would never tell."

She was thinking along quite as if she were planning a delightful journey for some one else. The horrible end of the thing she was doing had no part in her thought. The thought of sin never crept into her mind for an instant, and yet she was a devout soul and had prayed her way clear in every hardship heretofore in her life. There was not one feeling in her soul but that of fascination; but one thought—that of rest. She was drawn on and on.

"First I should wash the label off the bottle and throw the little wet wad out of the window. Then I should pour out a few drops into a cup of water and throw the rest away and wash the bottle clean. I would put my room in order—I should wish to give them as little trouble as possible—then I should undress myself and put on my very best nightdress. Then I should drink the water in the cup and wash that, and put myself in bed quietly and peacefully. In the morning they would come—but no one would guess the truth, so there would be no shock. No one cares enough to make a single inquiry. And there is money enough in my drawer to bury me decently."

That would be all. But not to her. To her it meant blessed rest and peace and perhaps—a mother's love again.

A smile that no one but her mother had ever seen came over her face. She sat still a long time with her head against the cold wall, then rose and walked to her window.

The darkness outside was pierced through and through with the shine of friendly lights and full of the far-off hum of human vioces and the beat of human feet. Then she rose, the last light of that smile still on her face, and walked quietly towards the cupboard.—Helen Watterson.

NOSES MADE OF ALUMINIUM.

They Are Attached to Eyeglasses and Defy Disease and Wasting Tissues.

There is a clever writer who had an adventure when he was a boy. He went out with a lasso to tame a wild colt, and for six months he lay in a hospital. One of his eyes was cut out and his nose was torn from its place. In fact, there was not half the making of a man's head left.

This is not pleasant.

No, it is not pleasant, and when you have heard the story you say with half a shudder: "Poor chap! I'm sorry for him, but I should not like to meet him." But Taliacotius has not lived in vain. So it falls out that this clever writer is as handsome a fellow as you'll meet in a foyer of a first night; two good eyes behind his pince-nez; moreover an excellent straight nose—better than nature has given you or me.

Once more—it was Taliacotius.

You shall read of him, if you have forgotten your Latinity, in that admirable hodge-podge of learning, "The Anatomy of Melancholy." This was the only book that could get Dr. Johnson out of his bed before 6 o'clock in the morning. It was a waste-basket of choice and perfectly useless learning. But now and again very good things may be found in a waste-basket, as you and I, who have contributed to them of old, know very well.

Hence, if you please, this tale is of Taliacotius.

His name was Taliacozzi, but out of respect to the pedantry of the fifteenth century he Latinized his name. He was the original nose-grafter, and in those slashing days of the duello, when gallants lost a nose every day or two, it may be said without flippancy that he had a graft. His method was not incurious. When an unnosed duelist came to him he laid him on a table. From the arm or thigh of the wounded man he cut a slip of flesh and skin, and, deftly hewing it into shape, clapped it in the place where the nose ought to be. In the beginning he had many difficulties. The grafted nose grew into long and unseemly lengths and hung wabbly and wrinkled over the chin, or it shrunk up stiffly and refused to be coaxed.

Then Taliacotius invented the silver bridge, and over this he trained his grafted noses in the way they should go. But with the surcease of dueling the business fell into disuse. The making of artificial noses was merely a whimsicality for learned men to crack classic jests upon. When the art was forgotten, as the trick of mummy making, a man in Germany invented porcelain noses. These, painted and stained, did very well. Wax noses, celluloid, wood and vulcanite all had their day. They are the artificial noses that we have known from infancy. As anyone who has ever worn one knows, they are attached to the face with springs. Deftly as this may be done, the pressure stops the circulation, causes inflammation and absorption of the tissues.

The latest thing in noses is aluminium. It is light and may be painted so naturally that it deceives the very wearer. And this new nose does away with all springs. It is fastened to a pair of eyeglasses, and when the glasses are on the nose is held in place. There is a deception, but you would never notice it. It is only necessary to refrain from polishing your eyeglasses in public and you may go down to the undertaker's with your secret undiscovered.

This is not as good a nose as the artificial nose of flesh and silver devised by Taliacotius, but that was only possible in cases of a sound body, while the aluminium make-shift defies disease and wasting tissues.

The clever writer whose nose was kicked off by a wild colt told the New York Mail and Express man that he liked his aluminium nose very much.

"Having once tried it," he said, "I would never be satisfied with any other."

ANCIENT ASTRONOMY.

Much Knowledge Possessed by the Egyptians 5,000 Years Ago

We find in the table at the Ramesseum distinct references to the bull, the lion and the scorpion, and it is also clearly indicated that at that time the star Sirius rose heliacally at the beginning of the rise of the Nile.

This word heliacally requires a little explanation, writes Lockyer in the Nineteenth Century. The ancients, who had no telescopes, and had to use their horizon as the only scientific instrument which they possessed, were very careful in determining the various conditions in which a star could rise. For instance, if a star were rising at the same time as the sun was rising, it was said to rise cosmically, but unless certain very obvious precautions were taken, the rising star would not be seen in consequence of the presence of daylight. It is quite clear that if we observe a star rising in the dawn it will get more and more difficult to observe the nearer the time of sunrise is approached. Therefore, what the ancients did was to determine a time before sunrise in the early dawn at which the star could be very obviously and clearly seen to rise. The term "heliacal rising" was coined to represent a star rising visibly in the dawn, therefore, before the sun. Generally throughout Egypt the sun was supposed to be something like 10 degrees below the horizon when a star was stated to rise heliacally.

We find, then, that more than 5,000 years ago the Egyptians were perfectly familiar with these facts and the difference between a cosmical and heliacal rising was perfectly clear to them. But the table at Thebes tells us moreover, that the sun's journey in relation to some of the zodiacal constellations was perfectly familiar 5,000 years ago.

These, then, are some of the more general statements which may be made with regard to the most important points so far discussed by those who have dealt with Egyptian astronomy, and it may be added that all this information has come to us in mythologic guise.

The various apparent movements of the heavenly bodies which are produced by the rotation and revolution of the earth and the effects of procession were familiar to the Egyptians, however ignorant they may have been of the causes; they carefully studied what they saw and attempted to put their knowledge together in the most convenient fashion, associating it with their strange imaginings and with their system of worship.

The issues of 1831, 1836, 1840, 1848, 1849 and 1852 fetch $3 each, while those of 1793, 1795 and 1802 are worth $1 apiece. None of the nickel cents is worth a premium except that of 1856, with a a flying eagle, which can be sold for $2.

Attention is called to the fact that the present is the first time for half a century that New England has not had a representative in the cabinet, excepting only about five weeks under President Polk and during the summer of 1874, between the resignation of Secretary Richardson and the appointment of Postmaster-General Jewell by General Grant.

Among the other great things in this country the number of high mountains is a remarkable feature. There are 300 mountains in the United States, each exceeding 10,000 feet in height. The greatest number are found in Colorado and Utah. In Alaska there are five which exceed 15,000 feet, and Mount Elias, 19,500 feet high, is the loftiest peak in the United States territory.

There are more varieties of the lettuce than of any other plant in existence. Over 300 different kinds of seed are advertised in the seed catalogues, the different kinds as a rule varying very slightly from each other. So small are the differences, in fact, that any lettuce grower, by the use of a particular fertilizer, or even by a special method of cultivation, can in a few years produce a new variety.

"We talk familiarly," said the archbishop of Canterbury not long ago, "about people being 'High Church' people or 'Low Church' people or 'Broad Church' people, but there is an unoccupied word, and it is the word which should come if not to our lips at least to our hearts and lives. I mean the word 'deep.' What is wanted is 'Deep Church' people, who can be produced only by Christian knowledge and Christian principles."

The girls of the annex of the Western Reserve university, in Cleveland, walk like young Dianas, and their cheeks glow with the ruddy tints of health. Their good looks and elastic step are due to three simple rules religiously enforced by the principal of the school. The young women are required to exercise in the open air, to drink warm milk, and in winter to refrain from warming their feet on hot-air registers. The regulations are obeyed to the letter, and that they may never be forgotten they have been preserved in the college yell. The words that fill the hearts of the young women with college pride are "Warm milk, fresh air, keep your fet off the registare."

There are comparatively few round-top trunks made now. The idea was that greater resisting power could be obtained with least weight by imitating to some extent the shape of an egg, which, as we know, will bear an absurdly great weight, but, unfortunately, there was no guarantee that the baggage-smasher would always stand the trunk the right way up. His failure to do this gave numberless reminders of the fact that no box is stronger than at its weakest point, and the damaged sides became very common. Now most trunks are made with flat tops, and are so strong all over that it is very difficult, even for an expert trunk-smasher, to break one.

In countries where the price of pineapples is much higher than here, the fruit is appreciated at something nearer its true merit. Pineapple juice has medicinal properties of the highest order. In throat diseases, and even in diphtheria, it has seldom failed to give relief, and as an anti-dyspeptic it is invaluable. The unpleasant taste victims of indigestion experience on rising in the morning can be got rid of by the persistent use of this remedy, and as it goes at once to the root of the trouble and removes the cause, the cure is a permanent one. Any dyspeptic who has not tried the pineapple should lose no time in taking the advice of one who has.

Princess May, of Teck, was recently the recipient of a beautiful momento of her late fiance, the Duke of Clarence. The gift was presented by the Countess of Aberdeen, on behalf of 7,500 working women, who wished to show their sympathy for the young princess. The present consists of a daintily worked gold box, which belonged to one of the last century's French kings, with a miniature of his late royal highness on the lid. It is an exquisite piece of work, by Taylor, the well-known artist, who was assisted by the suggestions of some intimates of the duke and photographs taken in Dublin before his death. The likeness is such an excellent one that poor little May shed many tears before the presentation ceremony was over with.

The Parapee palm (Guilielma speciosa) is cultivated by the Indian aborigines of the Guianas for its fruit, which they use largely as food. They plant it about their settlements, and, where it is found apparently wild in the forests, examination will show that such situations were formerly occupied by the Indians. In some seasons the fruit is produced without seeds, while in other seasons it contains seeds, the variation occurring in the fruit of the same trees from season to season. When boiled or roasted the fruit has something of the texture and taste of a dry, mealy potato. It is palatable and very nutritious. The fruits, which are individually about the size of a pigeon's egg, are borne in bunches of from forty to sixty together. There are two or three bearing seasons in a year.

SOME LOCAL HITS

Indulged in by Minstrel Lew Dockstader.

A Good Bill at the Wonderland—Lost in New York—Opera Friday and Saturday Evenings.

Lew Dockstader and his minstrels gave an enjoyable performance to a large audience at Wheeler's last evening. It was a straight minstrel performance of the old school and proved thoroughly enjoyable throughout. Dockstader himself is a whole show. He is original and exceedingly clever. His imitations of Ben Harrison, Grover Clevelanid and P. S. Gilmore were perfect.

As the president he delivered a set political speech in which he praised the city, the public buildings, the magnificent streets, etc., etc. He paid Mayor Emmick a compliment and thanked Frank Scott for the freedom of the city. He remarked to the postmaster general who dropped in, that Toledo was a good place to reside in.

"Yes," answered that individual, "so it is."

"A man can make lots of money here," continued Ben.

"Yes?"

"Oh, certainly; why it's such a good town that a man can make money here after he's dead."

"You don't tell me?"

"Yes, yes, that is I would gather as much from looking into the street commissioner's department," concluded the president with a wink.

The first part was elaborately set and moved with a snap. The specialties and sketches in the second part were most of them excellent, although one or two were a little stale and could be dropped without hurting the performance.

At the People's.

Lost in New York opened a week's engagement at the People's last night. The piece has been produced here before, and Toledo theater goers know generally just what it is. The company this year is stronger than last, although Louise Galloway, of Toledo, is missed from the cast. The scenery is fine and would make the performance a go even if the play was not a strong one. Lost in New York deserves to do a good business.

Two Good Operas.

The Kathyrine Germaine Opera company will appear at Wheeler's Friday and Saturday evenings, giving Amorita the first night, and Said Pascha the second evening. The company is not known here, but the Detroit papers, where it appeared last week, spoke highly of the performance, saying that it was a surprise to Detroit lovers of music.

At the Wonderland.

The attractions at Wonderland this week are many and varied. In curio hall the management have gathered together a conqus of novelties that cannot help but please the most exacting. There is Lelio, the young and beautiful snake enchantress, who at one time holds aloft 125 "pounds of snake"; Wilson, who is called by the lecturer the Human Balloon from the reason that he possesses a chest expansion of eighteen inches, and by power of expansion breaks straps, chains, ropes, etc. Next to this gentleman on the platform is Baska, the Japanese lightning artist, who does osme wonderfully clever work. But the big card of all for the ladies is Strasberger's educated monkey circus, little animals who do all sorts of tricks and keep the audience in a constant roar of laughter. The theater program is exceptionally good, and is rendered by the Fitzgibbon family, Maud Revelle, Tony Ryan, James Morton, Lowell Brothers, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morphet, who produce in a most perfect manner Kellar's latest and greatest illusion, "Oh," in which Mrs. Morphet disappears in a manner, while held by a committee, that is simply astounding.

WHAT WOMEN DON'T DO.

Why They Ignore the Ballot, Ibsen, Dress Reform and Woman's Rights.

Do you know why women do not vote? writes Edward W. Bok in the Ladies' Home Journal. It is because the vast and overwhelming majority of women in this country do not want the ballot, have absolutely no desire for it, and do not waste a moment of their time thinking about it.

Do you know why these women do not care to "broaden" their minds by reading Ibsen? It is because they think they sweeten their lives by reading Hawthorne and Thackeray and Longfellow and Walter Scott and Charles Dickens and the great mass of living writers whom you believe simply burden the earth with their presence.

Do you know why these women will not don the ridiculous "reform" garments which you unblushingly flaunt before audiences of American girlhood? It is because they prefer to be womanly, and dress tastefully and prettily as God intended women should dress.

Do you know why these women will not go to club meetings? It is because they have a little club in their own homes and the members of it are of their own flesh and blood, with which God has sanctioned and beautified their lives.

Do you know why they turn with disgust from your gatherings about "the rights of our sex?" Because their husbands give them every right of love and kindness they want.

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Quiet Session Held—The Financial Balances.

The school board met in regular session last evening, all members present but Messrs. Kohn, Trost and Zirwas.

Mr. Scott desired to know if he was not a member of the text book committee. On being informed that he was, he wanted further information why there had been a change in the text books, and he had had no knowledge of a meeting. He didn't know for sure whether he was a member of the committee or not, that was all.

Superintendent Compton reported the schools in a very crowded condition, but stated that the attendance was not so great but what it could be taken care of in some way. The new buildings would soon relieve the pressure.

He read the treasurer's report for the month showing the financial condition of the treasury, as follows:

Balance on hand August 1....	$45,890.10
Advanced by county auditor, August 31....	20,000.00
Sundries	708.90
Total	$66,599.00
Orders paid since last report....	$19,949.28
Balance on hand	46,649.72
Orders outsanding....	750.58
Balance available....	$45,899.14

Prof. McPherson offered to sell his mineral collection to the board for $125. It consists of 500 specimens, and is considered a very rare collection. The matter was referred to the committee on apparatus.

The fuel committee asked further time to report on gas contract.

REFORMED DRUNKARDS.

Keeley Graduates Meet in Dwight.

Governor Fifer Delivers an Address—Credit Given to the W. C. T. U.

Dwight, Ill., Sept. 13.—Reformed drunkards, termed by courtesy graduates of the Keeley institute, have taken this little town by storm to-day. It is the second national convention of the Associated Keeley Bi-Chloride of Gold clubs, and over five hundred delegates, with more than a thousand unaccredited visitors are here to participate in the event.

The town of Dwight has agreed to take care of the 300 delegates for three days free of charge, and under the direction of Mayor Raumberger the town has been elaborately decorated.

The convention was opened at noon in the new opera house, being called to order by Maj. Samuel E. Moore of New York. In his speech he paid tribute to the glorious work being accomplished by the Women's Christian Temperance unions, by the various religious temperance organizations, and by the prohibition party, in educating the public mind to that degree where it has been ready to accept a gold cure discovery.

The future protection of the youth of the land rests in the universal change which has been brought about in the public sentiment regarding the liquor traffic.

The report of the secretary showed that there are now in this country over 70,000 graduates of Keely institutes, and that 20,000 of these are members of bi-chloride of gold clubs. At present there are throughout the country 125 individual organizations with a membership ranging from a dozen to 5,000 people.

This afternoon Gov. Fifer will deliver an address and will be followed by men of reputation from every state in the union. In addition to the national convention a state convention will also open this afternoon to perfect the organization of the Illinois club. In addition there will be a convention of the Women's Auxiliary lasting three days, and the proceedings of which will demonstrate the interest that the women of the land are taking in the theory that drunkenness is a disease and not a crime.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Carlisle, Pa., Sept. 13.—A serious railroad accident occurred on the Cumberland Valley railroad at Middlesex station. Passenger train No. 12, going east, which leaves this city at 7:20, was running rapidly and when in the vicinity of the station an axle on the tender of the engine broke. The entire train of three coaches was wrecked. The cars were thrown upside down into adjoining fields. There were 25 passengers, but none were killed.

EXPENSIVE BLAZE.

Chicago, Sept. 13.—The crossing of wires in the basement of the Postal Telegraph company's office in the Imperial building yesterday caused a fire which destroyed all the cables leading to the switch-board. Not a wire in the office was left in working condition and the office was cut off from all communication with outside cities. A force of men was put to work and the wires were in working order last night.

KILLED HIS PLAYMATE.

Awful Confession of a New York Boy.

The Ghost of the Dead Walked in His Path and Haunted His Every Hour.

New York, Sept. 13.—A mystery of several months' standing, connected with the death of young Harry Quill, of No. 45 Washington street, was cleared up yesterday by the confession of George McKenzie, one of Quill's former playmates.

Quill, who was 15 years old, disappeared on the night of February 10. There was no explanation of his disappearance until his decomposed body was found at the bottom of an air shaft between the houses Nos. 53 and 55 Washington street, two months after he had been missed.

It was thought at first that he had met death by accident, but the police lately learned that McKenzie, who is 18 years old, had indulged in some suspicious talk regarding Quill's death.

They arrested him on Saturday and yesterday he confessed that he had pushed Quill down the shaft during a quarrel. After making his confession he complained to the officers that he was haunted by Quill's ghost. He was anxious not to be left alone in his cell. His mind has probably been affected by the worry over his crime.

MARKETS OF THE WORLD

Condition of the Grain Pits Described.

What People Are Paying for the Cereals.

Facts and Figures Gathered by An Army of Correspondents for Readers of the Bee.

Corn and Wheat.

Washington, Sept. 13.—The September average of the condition of winter and spring wheat as harvested is 85.3. The August average for spring wheat was 87.3, and the July condition of winter wheat was 89.6. September condition of corn 79.5. The statistician of the department of agriculture reports a decline in the September condition of corn to 79.5 from 82.5 in August. The change is slight in the surplus corn states except in Kansas. Present condition is 79 in Ohio, 75 in Indiana, 70 in Illinois, 78 in Iowa, 82 in Missouri, 70 in Kansas and 76 in Nebraska. In other states the average condition is everywhere higher than the national average except in Michigan and Wisconsin. In comparison with September reports of the past ten years only three were lower, 70.1 in 1890, 72.3 in 1887, 76.6 in 1886. The present figures are between five and six points below the average of 10 pervious years. The crop is well grown and maturing rapidly, without frost as yet in the eastern states. In the middle states drought has injured corn, especially in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, reducing condition five points in each, while in New York it is only depressed from 80 to 79. In Delaware last planted corn was injured. Maryland and Virginia drought also caused a serious reduction, while from South Carolina around to Texas high condition is well maintained, no figures falling to 90 except those of Florida and Mississippi. Rains in most of this region have interfered with cultivation and in some districts rotting of the ears is reported. In Texas and Arkansas good yields are assured, and a fair crop is made in Tennessee. Corn has improved in central Ohio, and declined from drought in the southern counties. Decided improvement is reported in Indiana. There has been injury from drought in Michigan, Illinois and Kansas and in less degree in Missouri and Iowa. The crop is late throughout the northwest. No injury from frost is reported.

The September average of condition of winter and spring wheat as harvested is 85.3. The August average for spring wheat was 87.3, and the July condition of winter wheat was 89.6. The average declines since previous reports therefore exceeds three points. In the preceding 10 years condition was lower in 1883, 1885, 1887, 1888 and 1890. The average of 10 years is 86. In the middle states quality is medium. Rust is reported to some extent. In the south the berry was generally very sound when harvested, but has been damaged somewhat by prevalent rains. The yield of Illinois wheat has generally met the expectation and is good in southern Indiana, but disappointing in some districts of that state and Ohio. The forcing weather of June produced a large growth of straw in Michigan, while later conditions resulted in a small shrunken berry. The yield in southern and western Missouri was somewhat better than was expected, though it was disappointing in other sections. Quality is excellent in Kansas and the quantity exceeds expectations. In the spring wheat section the crop is light in Wisconsin and barely an average in Minnesota. From 65 to 75 per cent. of the South Dakota crop was harvested on the 1st of September, relatively small in yield with a somewhat shriveled berry. A medium crop has been garnered on the Pacific coast. In Washington there was some improvement in August. The condition of other crops is as follows: Oats, 78.9; rye, 88.5; barley, 84.7; buckwheat, 89; potatoes, 74.8; tobacco, 79.9. This is a heavy reduction in everything except rye and barley.

Oats are steady. At to-day's market there was a small shower of new English wheat, which brought 32s. Foreign wheats were mostly 6d cheaper, but California and red winter were steady. WE DO THE BAKING, YOU DO THE EATING.

It is a sort of reciprocity arrangement. We spend our time and money inventing and producing new cakes and crackers to please the people. The people become our patrons and both are benefited.

The new "Grandfather's Hat Cake" is the latest dainty that we have on the market. It is a delightful cake and the popularity it has already gained is sufficient to assure its success.

Ask your grocer for "Grandfather's Hat." You'll be delighted with it.

Toledo Ladies Look on One At Detroit.

Interesting Objects Noticed and Commented Upon—A Teacher Visiting in the City.

A party of Toledo ladies spent a few days last week in Detroit, and among the places of interest visited was the Free Kindergarten. This charity is one of the most important of the day. Miss Reid, the superintendent of the Detroit system, is a graduate of the Indianapolis Normal Training course. She is ably assisted by her class of nine young ladies. There are two schools in Detroit which furnish work and play for about 150 children. Miss Helen Fay Healy, one of Miss Reid's assistants, returned to Toledo with the ladies. She is a guest of Miss Friedman at the Burnett, and will be very glad to talk with anyone interested in the work. One of the ladies speaking to a Bee said:

"Fifty or sixty bright, rosy little faces were turned toward the door as we entered. Some belonged to boys, some to girls, about evenly divided, perhaps. That they were all poor children was evident, not from the mother earth present, for there was none, but from the general neglige in costuming. Rents were plentiful, little bare feet and legs almost universal. When a bright red stocking was seen, a bare knee inevitably peeped forth, and the shoe on that little foot kept its place, for some mysterious reason, buttons not abounding. The hum of voices, which had ceased on our entrance, was soon heard again, for it was the "free play" hour. During this time the children are allowed to play at will with their blocks and papers, and it is now that the teacher recognizes the success of her work. The main idea of kindergarten work is order and symmetry. If the teacher has been successful in impressing the little one with this idea, this hour will make it evident. Unconsciously the play, be it with building blocks or strips of paper or clay, will assume a distinct line. The teacher has said that good builders always pile the bricks neatly in one place and so the little ones pile their blocks in regular order, or lay their paper strips in neat bunches, each color by itself. At one table the urchin is busy with a house, at another are found all the curves of pure mathematics that make the college student gasp in misery. The child knows the fact, the student the reason.

"While we were watching this work the sounds of a mouth-organ came to us. Instantly with the first note the hum of voices ceased. Across the room at one of the tables sat a little, black-haired beauty. She was leaning back in her chair, evidently tired with play. This was the musician. Her eyes had the far-away look that is almost pitiful when seen in children. Everyone in the room was listening and watching her, but she played on softly to herself, all unconscious of the attention. Little Irene is but four years old. Her mother is Italian, her father Irish. They are hard-working people and very poor. The little one goes nowhere without her harmonica. She is wonderfully gifted. She plays only for herself, apparently deriving great consolation from the music. Whenever she wishes she stops her work and plays, and at such times the teacher allows all work to cease, while the little ones listen to Irene. And even here love creeps in.

"There is in the kindergarten a little imp—Phillip by name—a little bare-footed, bare-legged urchin, with bright blue eyes and curly, golden hair. Phillip's years number but three, nevertheless that wee heart is crowded with love, and object, Irene. We were told that the little fellow at any moment will leave his task, go over to Irene's table and, putting one little arm around her neck, bring her face around with the other hand, plant on the rosy lips a kiss and return to his place and task without a word. Sometimes he will place a cheek against Irene's and she will put an arm around him, then they will play and work together. Often Irene will play on the harmonica because Phillip wishes it.

"Lunch is served each day. This lunch is provided by the ladies interested in the charity. It is difficult to believe that this is, in many cases, the only food eaten during the day. Yet such is the sad fact. Lunch consists of a large mug of milk, bread and jelly, little cakes, etc., the variety changing as different ladies provide.

"The children love the work. They are often found in the door even an hour before school opens. Sometimes the teachers have work at the school in the afternoon. The little ones have learned this, and always there will be some found waiting at the door. Often when the teachers come in the morning some children will say that they waited all the afternoon before. The hours are from 9 to 12.

"Another amusing occurrence, and sometimes, perhaps, a little embarrassing is the morning greeting. The school that we visited was several blocks from a street car line. The teachers of the school invariably find the curb lined with urchins waiting for the car that will bring their teachers. When it comes there is a wild hurrah, and they crowd around, eager to carry whatever they can lay their little hands upon.

"The kindergarten is a grand, noble charity. The masses make the nation. Teach the children love and order, and the prosperity of this great commonwealth is assured."

TOLEDO IN FAVOR

Of Restricting Immigration for Ninety Days.

A Car Load of Immigrants in the City—They Are Fed, Washed and Disinfected—A State and Government a Little Mixed.

This morning Mayor Emmick received a telegram from Mayor Pingree, of Detroit, inquiring if Toledo would co-operate with Detroit and other cities, requesting President Harrison to stop immigration for a period of 90 days.

Mayor Emmick wired an immediate reply that Toledo would join in such a movement, and will be glad to do anything to aid in the matter.

A carload of immigrants arrived in town at an early hour this morning over the Lake Shore. The local health officers stopped the train at Oak street and had the coach side-tracked. The immigrants were most of them in hard lines. They had one bun apiece for food and nothing else.

The local authorities did some tall hustling, packed the 32 travelers into the old King homestead, sent a stove over, secured provisions and filled the hungry horde up. To-day they were washed and disinfected. A few of them stay here and the rest go west over the Clover Leaf. There will be some expense attached to the running of this wholesale boarding house, and just who is to pay for it nobody knows. The health officials say that the immigrants must be fed, and they proceeded to feed them. Money matters will be settled later.

There seems to be a hitch somewhere in the port quarantine. The state has been paying for and conducting inspections with a boat at crib light for the past few days, but now that the government officials have notified Assistant Marine Surgeon W. H. Fisher that he must do the inspecting here, the state has withdrawn its boat and the port is unprotected to-day.

Mr. Fisher has telegraphed to Washington to ask if he shall hire a tug, but as yet has received no authority to do so. It looks as if the state officials were too hasty in their action in withdrawing their boat until the government had safely established a quarantine here.

The immigrants who are here were examined at New York and Buffalo, and hold certificates to that effect.

The property owners who were notified to tear down buildings are filing their kicks at the health office to-day in a lively manner. They demand inspections, special meetings of the board to reconsider, and other concessions too numerous to enumerate.

Brain-workers, keep heads clear, bowels open. Take Simmons Liver Regulator.

Chills and fever of three years standing cured by Simmons Liver Regulator.—E. Watkins, Watkins house, Uptonville, Ky.

Mrs. Logan, whose regard for the old soldiers is tireless, is planning for some social events during the Washington visit of the Grand Army, which will be interesting in their way. She has pretty well perfected all her plans for the reception to be given in the rotunda of the capitol on the evening of the 19th of September in honor of the women of the different organizations who will be there for the encampment. Mrs. Logan is chairman of the woman's reception committee. She has invited Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Morton and the ladies of the cabinet to receive the guests on that occasion. Mrs. Logan will also give at her own house a reception in honor of the John A. Logan posts of the country during the encampment week. The early part of October Mrs. Logan will spend in Chicago to be present at the world's fair ceremonies.

Take! Take Simmons Liver Regulator for dyspepsia, constipation and heartburn.

The Escurial Palace contains a cathedral, a monastery with 200 cells, two colleges, three chapter houses, three libraries and nearly 3,000 other rooms. It is lighted by 1,100 outer and 1,700 inner windows and has been fitly termed the eighth wonder of the world.

PRETTY PEN PICTURES.

Peculiar Characteristics of the New England Village.

Every genuine New England village is like an apple orchard. The trees are all apple trees, and yet there is not one of them that does not insist upon its own individuality, and asserts successfully its right to a special character of its own. If its neighbor leans to the north, then it will go to the east or the south. At any rate it will be something in and for itself.

So, as the crowding file comes toward us through the narrow passage, we catch for every face its own peculiar traits. That man looks not unlike the city type. He is a rich man and is always ready to lend money to the poor farmer, taking his farm, his cattle, and his furniture for security. The next one, with the bright blue eyes so full of lines, every one betraying fun and good humor, is the old stage driver, says Anna C. Brackett in Harper's Magazine.

There is not a man, woman, or child within a radius of ten miles whom he does not know, and scarcely a stone on the ten-mile mail route that he does not recognize as an old friend, as he drives past twice a day in all weathers. He it is who can manage the most obstinate horse, and make it do his will by dint of native shrewdness and tact. Following him comes a tall, slender, somewhat stooping farmer, with the kindly farmer's face. He lives in the delightful old brick house by the side of the stage road, known and respected of all, and the men who hire out to him for summer think themselves fortunate, for he is "just and kind."

Here comes a mechanic—a wheelwright, capenter, farmer. The sharp, watchful mechanic's eye looks clear ahead, and has no need to lower itself before any man. There are lines of sorrow and lines of care, but when he smiles they all disappear in a glow of sunshine like those that sweep over the landscape in which he has always lived, smoothing out the ridges in their gleam. He is the grave-digger, too, and knows all the resting places under the grass of the pretty little cemetery, which he cares for as if it were his own garden. The young man behind him in shirt sleeves—"boiled shirt" sleeves—caught up with elastic, is the democratic candidate. He has run over from the grocery store to cast his vote, presumably for the republican candidate, as they are very good friends, and as soon as he has got rid of it runs back again to his business.

The next one, tall and dark, the "honest man" who was once sent as representative, has driven four or five miles with "the nicest colt you ever saw," and has just come down from the platform, where he has been helping to count the vote. Following him a very old man leaning on a stick. We seldom see him except at night, when he comes after the cows. There is something touching in the fact that it is always the very old men or the very little boys that go after the cows at night.

It makes one think of what some phrenologist has said, that when a baby is born, God sends it into the world with a bare head, so that everyone can see just what material, what powers, it has to work with. Then he covers it up with hair, and says, "See what you can do with that!" And the child goes on working till, after his life is done, God uncovers the head again, that all may see what has been accomplished by the man.

So the old man who goes after the cows must often remember how he used to run behind them long years ago, before he had almost "got through," as the people here touchingly say when a man dies. And so they pass, farmer and farmer, though almost every man of them is something more than a mere farmer. There is nothing which strikes a city-bred person with more astonishment in the New England villages than the number of things every man can do.

THE MANUFACTURE OF WILD MEN.

There are many curious trades in the world, but the most strange must surely be the "artificial manufacture of wild men." Yet a well-known English doctor in China has just certified from his own personal experience that this art is regularly practiced in the Flowery Kingdom.

First a youth is kidnapped, then bit by bit he is flayed alive, and the skin of a dog or a bear is grafted piece by piece upon him. His vocal cords are next destroyed by the action of charcoal to make him dumb, and the double purpose of causing "etiolation" of the skin and utter degradation of the mental faculties is effected by keeping him immured in a perfectly black hole for a number of years. In fact, by treating him like a brute for a sufficiently long time, he is made into one. At last he is exhibited to the entirely credulous Chinese as a wild man of the woods, and his possessors reap a rich harvest. The priests, it seems, are adepts at the art. When a kidnapper, however, is caught by the people he is torn to pieces, and when the authorities get him they torture him and promptly behead him.—London Chronicle.

AN IRISH RECHRISTENING.

When Ireland gets home rule, as laid smoothly down by Mr. W. O'Brien and Company, there may, perchance, be another christening of places that at present bear hated names. For instance, Queenstown and Kingstown must of a surety be changed to something more appropriate. The "Cove of Cork" ceased to exist on the 3d of August, 1849, and was rebaptized. After all, there may not be much to fear, and the inhabitants of the pleasant resort can sleep safe in their beds seeing that even the name of the liberator will not be accepted in your city for what you are pleased to boast is the widest street, I do not say the cleanest, in the United Kingdom.—Weekly Irish Times.

JOHN WESLEY'S AUTOGRAPH.

An interesting letter, the last written by John Wesley, was sold a few days ago by Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge. The text was as follows: "To the Board of Customs—Gentlemen: Two or three days ago Mr. Ireland sent me, as a present, two dozen of French claret, which I am ordered to drink during my present weakness. The White Swan Inn. It was seized—beg it may be restored to your obedient servant, John Wesley, November 14, 1790, City Road. Whatever duty comes due, I will see duly paid." This touching appeal to the board of customs is endorsed "Rejected, W. W." The writing is very feeble and broken, and the reference to the White Swan Inn is not clear; possibly he wanted the claret sent there. The letter realized 22s.—Sala's Journal.

DAISIES AND BUFFALO BUGS.

A queer thing was told us the other day by a lady whose new house suddenly became infested with buffalo bugs, which eat everything in their path. A friend told her that the buffalo bug's is found in the golden cup of the lovely common field daisy that eveyrbody loves. Determined to investigate the matter she looked into some daisy cups growing in a field, and, sure enough, there she found in several daisies the detested insect comfortably taking its ease. Since the Oscar Wilde fashion of bringing daisies into the house for decoration is common, if the daisy theory is true it is worth knowing, for in that case, no daisies no buffalo bugs.—Hartford (Conn.) Times.

A PRUDENT MAN.

"Listen," exclaimed Mrs. Gaswell, as she woke her husband about 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

"What is it?"

"There's a burglar down stairs! I'm sure there is!"

"Well, what do you want me to do?"

"Why, get your revolver and drive him out, of course."

"No, indeed, I won't. I know a scheme worth two of that."

"What is your scheme?"

"I read in a paper the other day about a burglar in Maine who not only failed to get anything in a house he broke into, but he dropped a roll of bills containing $150 on the floor. There isn't anything for the chap down stairs to steal, and I don't want to drive him away till he has had a chance to drop a roll of money."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

CHOLERA PREVENTIVES!

It is a fact well known to physicians who are familiar with the history of cholera epidemics of 1835 and 1854, that the disease was peculiarly fatal in the lime stone districts of the country, where the inhabitants drank water from wells. It was proven by a leading physician in a Southern city that not a single family who used filtered cistern or river water suffered from the disease. Health Officer Fisher when he advised the citizens of Toledo to quit using well water struck the keynote of cholera sanitation.

All kinds of Filters thoroughly repacked with fresh material. Call Phone 562.

We are prepared to furnish our Filters, that have a national reputaton for worth, at low prices and upon easy terms of payment. Call at our works, 322 and 324 Water Street, Toledo, or upon dealers named below.
